Talking ... everybody does it.
Some do it too much ... some do it not often enough.
This book depicts every TR talker you ever heard about and some you didn't hear about.
This is the talking book and these are the TR talkers.

Start requires new routines

1978 . . . now a part of our past. To some it meant carefree days of fun and excitement. To others, it was a time of endless trauma and worthless expectations.

We started the year in a somewhat different manner. Most of us had been spoiled by the few extra weeks of summer vacation — and we wanted more. Once back, however, into the old routine of setting the alarm clock for the early-morning wake-up, we soon forgot about our 9 a.m. leisurely breakfasts, mid-morning swims and "must watch" television programs such as "All My Children." The school year was under way — time to get down to serious study to prove to Dad we could handle the extra-curricular activities and still bring home a report card without failing grades.

We good kids sacrificed the seemingly necessary requirements for healthy living: partying until dawn, weekday trips to Canyon Lake and endless phone gossip. Sinners were noticeable by dark bags under their eyes, miraculously long lasting sunburns with shriveled toes and sudden attacks of laryngitis. Somehow we managed to re-familiarize ourselves with the English alphabet and soon mastered the grueling task of recalling the how-to's of reading and writing.

With the most difficult phase out of the way, we discovered that school was not so bad after all. Boredom rarely was heard of, as we were offered all sorts of alternatives to the sometimes unbearable class routines of "strictly academics." Movies, choral presentations, special assemblies and rock concerts provided those interested with legal excuses for blowing off biology, French and calculus. We even found ourselves roaming the campus during after-school hours to attend JV and frosh football games, numerous club meetings, drama productions and class-sponsored dances.

Many of us looked forward to going to school. Consequently, it was theorized widely that skipping out had reached an all-time low in comparison with past years (or could it have been because a time-punch clock was added in the attendance office to prevent the forgery of absence admission slips?) School was the ultimate communications medium. The main courtyard became the social center of the campus. A student just was not normal if he or she didn't trod the paved gathering grounds at least a million times.

We were becoming involved. We experienced a closeness and a togetherness some schools only dreamed about. We supported each other's endeavors and not only added more fame to our school's name, but also built names for ourselves. Spirit of participation grew as each day passed, thus building the ideal relationship between the student and the educational process. Sports events and pep rallies boasted outstanding attendance records. We competed in every type of contest imaginable, from slide rule to debate to swimming. Sometimes it even meant trying to beat out a good friend.

We worked hard to achieve results (we had to . . . after reading in BIG STICK that Roosevelt had been hit by a mysterious phenomenon called cheating, and after witnessing the measures teachers took to prevent it, such as pacing up and down the aisles on the now thin linoleum floors.) Achieving wasn't easy, either. Many of us became discouraged when a teacher would not give a standardized test instead of her own essay-laden exam, or when another teacher would not give the extra point needed to make the grade one letter higher. The problem of inadequate facilities existed, too. That could not be helped, since a school designed for 2,000 was crammed full with nearly 3,200. With more students to attend to, there was less time to devote to the finer things in life, such as mimeographed copies (resulting in more cases of fatal writers cramp.) Overcrowded rest-rooms made fast talkers out of most of us, as it was necessary to persuade the next in line that your case was more of an emergency. A student was lucky to hit the door of his next class (much less be seated) on time without tousled hair, wrinkled clothes or even a missing shoe. We adopted a "survival of the fittest" policy during the passing periods.

Congress orders late school start

Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe in July called a special session of the Texas Legislature. That gathering ratified a bill to delay the opening of school for two weeks. The delay to save money and energy was "more positive that negative," Roosevelt principal Thomas Moseley said. Students and administrators were able to enjoy more sun-filled days.

But a late-starting year didn't stop the Rough Rider student body from showing its spirit at the Red, White and Blue Revue and at the Rough Riders against San Angelo football game, a contest staged before the opening day of classes.

The first day of school was filled, as usual, with confusion and tardies. Many students found themselves reminiscing with old friends and meeting new people, and just getting into the swing of going back to school after an extended summer vacation.

"I was happy school was delayed because it gave me the opportunity to spend longer finding jobs for my students," HECE teacher Jan Schmidt said.

In the beginning ...

Teddy's folks were able to spend a few more weeks romping in the sun, as school opening was delayed until Sept. 6. Many were anxious on that day, however, to get back into the old routine.

First day consisted of mass congregations in the halls just to see who was still around and what went on during the summer. An ever-present line of students stood in the office requesting schedule changes and even schedule copies, because some students always find it difficult to hold on to the things for any given length of time. The hopeless search for lockers and rooms was apparent as many students mindlessly wandered into classes tardy. Jammed lockers made more trouble for students, especially for freshmen who found it hard enough just to become accustomed to the new surroundings.

Talk, practice occupy a.m.

Whether sitting in the cafeteria, library or courtyards, or attending practices of one kind or another, students almost always could find something to do before school.

Parking became more of a problem this year. Too few spaces and too many cars made many students resort to parking in Wendy's and Windsor Park Mall lots. Mordred Street was declared a "No Parking - Tow Away Zone," forcing some students to come a little earlier to find an empty space.

Meeting friends in the morning was sometimes the best part of the day, since conversations were unaffected by worries about classwork. Groups of friends eventually found their own places to stand or sit — or both — in the mornings.

During football season, band members practiced formation on the field as football players hustled to improve their game. Patriots rehearsed routines in anticipation of halftime performances.

After school, students could be seen in a mad rush to catch buses home. Parking lot exits were snarled by networks of cars all trying to get out at the same time. And someone always could be heard at his locker, mumbling complaints about homework, only to come back the next day to repeat the whole procedure.

Controversial topics target for discussion

"The thing about sociology is that everybody has almost total freedom to say whatever they want. It really helps you to understand what other people think about things," sociology student Mike Gutierrez said.

Discussing topics such as death, prejudice and human sexuality, the objective of sociology courses was to be "an elective course which is operated for students' maximum involvement with the instructor, other students and the material," according to the introduction to the course.

To earn credits, students could turn in evaluations of television shows, books, songs or movies. Original skits, artwork or writings also were eligible for submission to earn points.

An offshoot of the sociology program was "confluent education." CE students traveled to nearby elementary and middle schools to address both faculties and students on building self-esteem. Parent and family life education (PAFLE) workshops in February were conducted to help students, teachers and parents understand themselves and to reinforce involvements and communications.

Beta Club 'experiences' artistic English

"Beta Club gives students who are interested in English a chance to experience the artistic aspects of the subject through lectures, plays and films," Pat Rutledge, Beta Club sponsor, said.

The club, with more than 80 senior members, required an "A" average in English and a "B" average overall. Members attended several worthwhile literary events such as a Trinity University showing of the film, "Lord of the Flies."

Beta members, however, did not confine themselves to literary events. Many helped "Elf Louise" in her toy collection for children at Christmas.

Beta Club's primary project in the spring was working with the Publications Department to produce Outlook. Club members screened poetry, prose, art and literature, selecting those to be included in the literary/art section of the spring magazine.

But Beta Club members weren't the only English students who worked this year. Most seniors spent weeks toiling over their term papers. Many juniors prepared for their senior year by completing notecards on a topic of their choice. Sophomores trudged through essays on such classics as "Silas Marner" and "Jane Eyre," and freshmen learned the basic skills needed to survive their next three years.

Math fun, too

When thinking of the mathematician people usually tend to imagine a person sitting at a computer thinking and working hard, but Mu Alpha Theta members proved not all mathematicians were that way.

"The purpose of this club is to promote mathematics among high school students, but we do find time to enjoy ourselves," president Carol Suggs said.

By adding a trip to Astroworld as a pit stop on their way to NASA and by celebrating mathematician John Wallis' birthday with a party, members disproved the all-work-and-no-play myth.

The 70 members raised money by sponsoring bake sales, selling bio-rhythms (which they programmed on the TR computer) and working the concession stand at the Roosevelt UIL practice meet.

Mu Alpha Theta members weren't the only math students who were busy with their favorite subject. All math classes took tests created for them by Mu Alpha Theta members and high scorers won awards for their efforts.

New courses spark science curriculum

Interest in science classes grew bigger with three new courses, oceanography, meteorology and geology.

Teachers reported high enrollment in the three new courses. Many students liked the way classes rotated so they could study a different course each quarter.

"Not only do you get to learn about something new every quarter, you also get to meet new people instead of seeing the same ones everyday," junior Ben Briseno said.

Horticulture, a form of biology, was one way students became acquainted with dirt and mud.

"Potting plans and transplanting is more than fun. It's hard work," Alisa Welty, horticulture student, said.

With the three new classes, science courses numbered 15.

To earn the six quarter units required by the state for graduation, students chose from Chemistry I and II, technical chemistry, Biology I and II, horticulture, physical science, Physics I and II, and the three new classes.

Social studies probe world

Social Studies Department offered students an opportunity to learn about the world and its problems.

In American history, students learned the basics of American society and how the country founded its democratic principles. World history focused on past civilizations as well as foreign countries. Government students were educated in the laws of the land and how law and economy affect American citizens.

Class time was divided between worksheets, discussions and tests. American history classes investigated the stock market and world history classes researched foreign countries' cultures and traditions. Government classes went off-campus to visit Bexar County courthouses and jails.

DE integrates classes, sexes

Physical Education Department experienced a drastic change in 1977. Girls and boys departments, once separated, were united into a single group. Most girls liked the idea of having boys in their classes, but some of the boys said girls were "interfering" with their regular vigorous play of different sports.

During the year, students had a chance to compete in a variety of sports including football, basketball and volleyball.

Overall physical education was a time of relaxation and fun for students and the coaches who taught them the rules of the game.

Keeping up with 'Bully!!'

"Yearbook? What's that?"

"A memorable thing, that yearbook. Art, wit, and BULLY!!"

Sound familiar? Recall the week of Nov. 7-10, when the Publications Department conducted its annual yearbook sale. SAGAMORE staff, with the help of BIG STICK editor Jennifer Johnston and OUTLOOK editor Loren Henley, presented a slide show and a comedy skit in order to announce SAGAMORE ordering dates.

SAGAMORE was the ultimate task for the journalism students, who, through sheer guts and determination, compiled the year's events into the 288-page publication. Ever conscious about meeting the deadlines set, editors Karen Boyd, Donna Schardt and Wendy Wilson, along with their adviser Cynthia Muenz and advertising managers Cheryl Pritchard and Connie Unger, breathed a sigh of relief when the finished product was sent to the publisher. BULLY, BULLY!!

Meeting deadlines also kept BIG STICK staffers busily scanning the campus and neighboring community for newsworthy items. Under the direction of Jennifer Johnston, the staff managed to put out its tri-weekly publication in top form.

The campus newspaper featured current events, editorials, entertainment reviews and announcements, sports reports and cartoons. Many hours of hard work and patience were needed to put out the paper and it was all done just to keep the student body, faculty and staff involved in and informed about Rough Rider Country.

FTA visits schools

Preparing young adults for a possible career in teaching was the primary concept of Future Teachers of America. Under the guidance of Terri Hill and Carolyn Smelley, FTA members explored the world of student teaching with visits to other schools. Meeting every other Monday after school, the group discussed the basics of the profession and the philosophy behind it.

An increase in membership enabled the group to schedule a wide array of activities, including the observation of Teacher Appreciation Day. A candy sale and attendance at district and state conventions also kept members busy.

Rider writers gain recognition

Persons of the imaginative genre took pen in hand and created literary works that they hoped would astound the world. Surely there was a society that recognized the efforts of these outgoing artists.

Luckily for budding TR journalists, such a society existed. Quill and Scroll, the international honor society for high school journalists, provided the group with insight to the many facets of journalism.

Through regular group sessions Quill and Scroll members were able to share new ideas and express opinions relating to everything from feature writing to the latest special effects techniques. Highlighting the year's activities was the annual honors banquet, where the following year's officers were announced.

Beginning bands improve sound

Though they do not perform publicly during the year, varsity and concert band members keep busy.

Consisting of beginning musicians, varsity band spends its time learning fundamental theories that are necessary to proper playing. They receive instruction aimed at improving their basic skills in an environment similar to that of private lessons. Concert band studies advanced musical techniques and more difficult musical compositions.

Members often can be found in the band hall after school putting in extra practice time. "I think we've shown a lot of improvement since the beginning of the year," varsity band student Jenny Nybro said.

After attending summer band, members are encouraged to try out for a position in a higher band.

'Contra-band' days attract musicians

Lake Charles, La., in spring was the scene of one of stage band's most outstanding events. Members competed at McNeese University as part of the activities for the "Contra-band" Days festival. They earned second division for their efforts.

Playing an active role around school and in the community, stage band members performed for PTA assemblies, the sausage supper, local nursing homes and the grand opening of Burger Chef on Walzem Road.

Stage band in May also competed in the UTSA jazz festival in which the musicians received critiques of their performance.

Language clubs win in tough competition

Through the skills of their members, both as individuals and as a team, Roosevelt's Latin and Russian clubs won many awards.

Latin Club proved victorious in the winter-spring intramural volleyball games, in which members won three out of four games.

In December Latin Club celebrated an ancient Roman festival with a Saturnalia party, and in February members won several events in the Latin Olympics in Uvalde. Club members also attended a state convention.

Latin Club presented awards and installed new officers at its Junior Classical League (JCL) banquet at the Magic Time Machine in May.

Thirty-six French Club members live it up

In April, the French Club made its second annual trip to New Orleans. Thirty-six members and chaperones spent four wild days and nights touring the city, roaming Bourbon Street, and just generally enjoying themselves.

French Club activities began in October with the annual covered dish dinner. At the party assorted French foods were served.

The club spent the winter months raising money for its contest and New Orleans trip. In March, 60 students went to Midland for the Texas French Symposium and brought back 13 awards.

The French Honor Society May 9 conducted its first induction banquet at La Louisiane restaurant. The group finished off the year with a swimming party and picnic.

Spanish Club travels to Mexico

Members of Roosevelt's Spanish Club traveled to the Mexican town of Piedras Negras as a field trip in March. The group went sight-seeing and window-shopping.

Spanish Club started the year off with its annual back-to-school party.

In October, Los Amigos de las Americas presented a program which interested Roosevelt students. Los Amigos are students who travel to various impoverished areas and give injections to villagers. Several Spanish Club members have become involved in the program.

During the winter, Spanish Club participated in the intramural volleyball games and won their games against the Latin and German clubs. Other winter activities included a Christmas party and a candy sale to raise money for the field trip and a picnic.

Spanish Club celebrated the end of the year with a picnic at Camp Warnecke in New Braunfels.

'Germans' take TAGS awards

At the annual Texas Association of German Students (TAGS) convention and contest at the University of Texas at Arlington, five Roosevelt students won prizes in art, music and literature categories.

In fall the German Club was busy initiating new members with a tasting party. Then it was on to the New Braunfels Wurstfest in October. In November, the German Club won third overall sweepstakes at the MacArthur Language Festival.

At Christmastime, the club enjoyed its annual Christmas party and did charity work.

Besides work for charity, the German Club did much towards filling the hearts (and stomachs) of Roosevelt's students in the winter. In January they conducted a hot chocolate and doughnut sale, and in February the annual "lebkucken" (gingerbread hearts) sale. Those fund-raising efforts defrayed the cost of attending the TAGS convention. The group also rewarded faithful club workers with an end-of-school banquet.

FBLA promotes business future

With the goal of making students more aware of the business world, the Future Business Leaders of America formed an industrious and enthusiastic organization. The club designed and created a breakthrough for the Seguin football game and later competed in several UIL contests. Members also attended an installation dinner at the Old San Francisco Steak House and finished off the year with a better idea of what would be in store for them in business fields. "It was a year in which we learned many new things about business to help us in the future," senior Debbie Cochran said.

ROTC rates high

With its annual formal inspection a success, the ROTC corps of cadets relaxed and breathed a sigh of relief. Effort paid off when Roosevelt ROTC won "Honor Unit with Distinction," the highest award a unit can receive.

Hard work was by no means over because company, platoon and squad drill competition was just around the corner. Platoon and squad leaders worked to get their units ready to compete.

Work like that had its beginnings at the start of the school year. Alpha Company showed its efficiency in teaching new cadets by becoming Brigade Honor Unit, an award given to the best company in the corps, after close inspection by the brigade commander this year, Charles Delcambre.

Producing good marksmen (and markswomen) was another facet of ROTC training. The marksmanship program, under the supervision of Sgt. Maj. Woodrow Stewart and varsity rifle team members, enabled cadets to test their shooting skill for medals and ribbons.

With a good inspection, good cadets, good marksmen and high spirits, hardly anyone said ROTC had an average year.

SJG champ at state

For the first time in its history, the San Juan Guard varsity drill team won the state championship at Texas A&M University.

Commander Charles Delcambre and the San Juan Guard practiced for months for the most important drill meet of the year. It wasn't the only one, though. San Juan Guard competed at the Alamo Drill Meet, Texas A&I Drill Meet, Northeast Drill Meet and the K-Mart Drill Meet in Wichita Falls, taking high honors in all of them.

The San Juan Guard is not the only drill team at Roosevelt. The Riderettes girls drill team possesses the same record of excellence as the boys varsity team. Commanded by Claudia Page, the Riderettes won second place overall in the state competition.

The Triple "R" Guard, boys JV drill team, took their share of honors. At the San Angelo Drill Meet the Triple "R" Guard defeated 15 varsity teams, taking fifth place overall. The guard also won the district championship at the North East Drill Meet.

Not to be outdone, the Rough Rider Rifles won first place in district rifle competition. The team also took second place in the "Top O' Texas" rifle meet in Wichita Falls.

Dances provide fun, enjoyment

Once a year, for cadets' fun and enjoyment, ROTC sponsors its Combat Ball, featuring uniforms from foreign countries. Most guests just danced and socialized at the pre-Christmas holiday dance, but cadets were free to do high kicks and other crazy things at will.

January brought the Red, White and Blue Military Ball. At the ball all male cadets wore their dress green uniform and girls, formal gowns. The ceremonial evening meant a lot to all cadets, but had a special meaning for officers who received their commissions.

Art Club shares talent with young painters

Children at Windcrest and Walzem elementary schools this year learned arts and crafts techniques from students in the classes of Eleanor Lilly, Kyrenda Allison and Jerry Frey. Art students instructed elementary school students in crafts such as papier mache and painting. A wall-sized mural featuring circus characters was provided by advanced art students for children at Windcrest Elementary.

Displays also were an integral part of art students' lives. Projects by Art IV and V students in April were displayed in the Little Theater for Roosevelt students. More than 50 TR students April 20 and 21 displayed works in Young Artists Night Gallery, a districtwide show by students from all grade levels.

Art students completed daily projects such as pastels, pencil drawings, papier mache, calligraphy, macrame and water colors for credit. Besides classwork, however, art students took time out for field trips to art galleries and museums such as the Witte Museum and McNay Art Institute.

Tourneys take time

Inter-school tournaments took many weekends out of the year for speech and drama students. Events such as prose or poetry reading, dramatic or humorous interpretation, oration, extemporaneous speaking, debate and duet acting were open for competition. Coached by teachers John O'Neill and Linda Aaron, 12 qualified for state competition through elimination at National Forensic League tournaments, and contestants accumulated more than 60 trophies for the department.

The department in January staged its "Unknown Comics," a presentation of duet acting scenes and original skits to raise money. Candy and bake sales also helped out with entry fees for tournaments and the purchase of materials for play sets and costumes.

Construction of sets for the department's productions of "The Wonderful Adventures of Don Quixote" and "Glass Menagerie" was done by students during classtime as well as after hours. Drama instructor O'Neill said, "It's been a good year in terms of competitions and productions. We've got a lot of talent here."

TR bird winner

Not long ago many students had not heard of the Industrial Arts Club, but the Roosevelt Rooster brought the club instant recognition although the "rooster" was not the club's only project in 1978.

The club was composed of drafting, architectural drawing and shop students. Teachers Perry Penn instructed the drafting and architectural drawing students to read, interpret, prepare and draw blueprints. Later emphasis was placed on commercial blueprints and construction. General shop, instructed by Bill Jones and Leslie Bell, trained students into skilled workers with wood and leather.

Profits from the rooster fund-raising project were used in March to send members of the club to a contest at Texas A&M University as well as to the regional and state meets.

ODP new class

Cooperative Vocational Academic Education — Office Duplicating Practices (CVAE-ODP) was a new vocational program for learning about office machinery.

The CVAE-ODP class was two hours long and was composed of freshman and sophomore students. These students learned to operate machines from typewriters to stencil duplicators.

The students helped TR teachers by duplicating papers for them and running errands. CVAE-ODP also made note pads for the teachers.

Another vocational group was Home Economics Cooperative Education (HECE). This course involved the student in home-related employment.

The club was involved in projects ranging from the PTA flea market and carnation sale to a film presentation of "Brian's Song" in cooperation with the Vocational Office Education classes.

Cosmetologists earn licenses

If you ever wondered what to do with your hair, cosmetology could have provided the answer.

Cosmetology is a two-year vocational program. The goal of each student is to obtain a state license.

To obtain that goal the student enrolled in one hour of training and two hours of lab during the first year. After 150 hours in class, the student cosmetologist could work on a patron — the "customers" of the cosmetology class. Rate for a haircut of a certain style was $2, a shampoo and set was $1.50 and a trim was $1. Each student spent 1,000 class hours in training before she took the state board exam to become a licensed cosmetologist.

Food services is another group that dealt with one of America's favorite pastimes — food.

Students began their training in a lab set-up much like the school cafeteria.

There they learned to serve food and even to wash dishes. As the year progressed they visited bakeries and other food-related places of employment. Third year students were allowed an outside job, other than serving teachers at school. The hot lunch service for teachers was on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

VOE skills work

Vocational Office Education (VOE) helped students prepare for office jobs during the high school years and beyond.

VOE training started with one year of lab class. Instruction consisted of business English and spelling, shorthand and transcription, record keeping, calculating, dictation, duplication and office procedures. Class was conducted one hour a day. The next year the student was employed at a job requiring office skills. Each student attended two regular classes and one VOE class before going to work a minimum of three hours a day. Students were graded by their employers.

Students in the first year lab class and workers in the co-op class all were members of the Office Education Association (OEA). Members visited Southern Manor Nursing Home and collected articles in the food drive for the TR custodians. OEA members attended contests to test their office techniques. Members who competed at the OEA state meet were Nancy Kendall, Sharon Winkler and Carrie Davis. District winners who did not advance to state were Ginger Durbin, Ann Jones, Susan McCord and Roberta Simecki. All tests were based on the students' ability to "handle persons in a business office," Sue Samson, VOE lab teacher, said.

Five win state

Five DE students in March won first place state trophies at the state career development contest.

Winners Marva Kennedy and Debbie Evans, finance and credit; Carol Savell, food services; Rachel Foley, apparel and accessories; and Kathy Jonietz, general merchandise; competed in the national contest in Washington D.C., May 8-11.

One of many contests and meets was in Corpus Christi where six Roosevelt students participated in a leadership lab in October. Participants were Theresa Barnes, Norma Trejo, Lola Baker, Lisa Ayers, Debbie Tarvin and Steve Tipton.

In the Area IV Career Development Conference, 10 students qualified for state level competition. Evans, Kennedy and Mark Schwartz, finance and credit; Foley and Arlene Yaskanich, apparel and accessories; Savell and Tarvin, food services; Jonietz and Ann Shook, general merchandise; and Sheila Gamble, advertising services; competed.

Although contests abounded, students had to compete in class itself.

All students were members of Distributive Education Clubs of America. The club stressed civic consciousness, social intelligence and leadership development. Members donated all profits from a candy sale to the city-wide scholarship fund for DE students. Those scholarships were awarded in May at a banquet to honor all San Antonio DE students, their employers and school administrators.

"Since TR has the only auto paint and body course in the North East district, I'm really particular about the people I choose," instructor Clayton Williams said.

Twenty is the maximum number enrolled in the class to insure flexibility. To enter the course a student had to maintain a good attendance record and a grade average of C or better.

Auto paint and body is a two-year academic program that teaches such skills as paint preparation, sanding, masking and taping as well as advanced subjects — estimation of repairs and major body parts and alignment.

In March Gary Ermatinger won a ribbon and a plaque in the district meet for his car entry, "White Ghost."

Team wins first

Law Enforcement's agility team took the first place trophy in competition in early March.

The five students involved were Preston Gant, Mike Johnson, John Murray, Miriam Hammerle and Donna Hutchings. They took an agility test much like those police officers take. Four won ribbons for individual high point scoring on the test. Later, on April 7, the students advanced to state competition in the San Antonio Convention Center.

Besides the contest the club journeyed to Huntsville, Bexar County Jail, the County Courthouse, the police station and the Department of Public Safety.

At Christmas the students collected articles of clothing and food for six families. On Christmas Eve they delivered the goods as one student played Santa for the smaller children.

Four win district

At the District V Skill Olympics at Holmes High School in March Industrial Cooperative Training — Health Occupations (ICT-HO) placed four first place winners.

Winning were James Lingenhag in radio and TV repair, Nancy Lauer in medical laboratory assisting, Debbie McDonald in dental assisting and Roy Rodriguez in the chef's competition.

Carol Salziger and Dale Smith won third places, and Brian Plain won fourth place in the competition.

ICT-HO was a vocational class that instructed health and industrial job areas. Jobs placed students as auto mechanics and paint and body repairmen, dental and medical assistants, chefs, nurses aides and cabinet makers. The class was designed to assist students to select jobs and then work in the particular field. The coordinator and employer were the guides who instructed students in their area of work.

Munch out!

Eating . . . a secret, favorite activity for many. Those who couldn't conceal their weakness were noticeable by pot bellies, empty pockets and large thighs (no doubt caused by running to the snack bar to grab the softest Twinkies.)

Lunch time probably was one of the favorite periods of the day. For what other reason could one see (three times a day because of the divided lunch periods) hordes of students stampeding through cafeteria doors, knocking each other down to be first in line?

Students took various routes when feeding time came. They were offered a choice of a full-course meal from the serving line or every type of "junk" food imaginable from the snack bar. For braver souls with a more flexible budget, countless fast food eateries were found up and down Walzem Road.

Every Tuesday and Thursday, faculty was offered a break from the cafeteria lunch routine. Food Services students prepared a variety of dishes, enabling teachers to treat their appetities.

Of course, for those who either couldn't wait for fourth period or who suffered sudden attacks of hunger during the day, clubs and organizations allowed them to empty their pockets in return for such delicacies as home-made doughnuts, melting M&M's and Handy Andy Bakery chocolate chip cookies. So much for eating!

'WELL I'M IMPRESSED. IT LOOKS LIKE YOU LEARNED A LOT THIS YEAR. BUT YOU COULDN'T HAVE SPENT ALL YOUR TIME ON CLASSWORK. WHAT ELSE DID YOU DO?'

There was more to school than just hitting the books. Talents, skills and special interests were exhibited in all types of extracurricular activity. For some it was through an after-school job at Bill Miller Bar-B-Q. For others it was through a visit to Bexar County Jail with the Law Enforcement Club or a lead role in "The Glass Menagerie."

Whatever the way . . .

Riders moonlight

Going to school all day and working afterward sometimes was a difficult task.

Many jobs required that a student report to work immediately after school leaving him with little time to write a term paper or study for the ever present test coming up in math.

Other students were involved in extra-curricular activities and their time after school was devoted to band, Patriots, poster-painting or practice for UIL events.

But for most students the after-school job was just a job. They worked on the days appointed and then spent the money on dates, on new clothes or on an old car.

Jobs varied somewhat. Some students worked at nearby Windsor Park Mall in food restaurants or retail stores.

Others worked on a near-professional level at jobs arranged through the school.

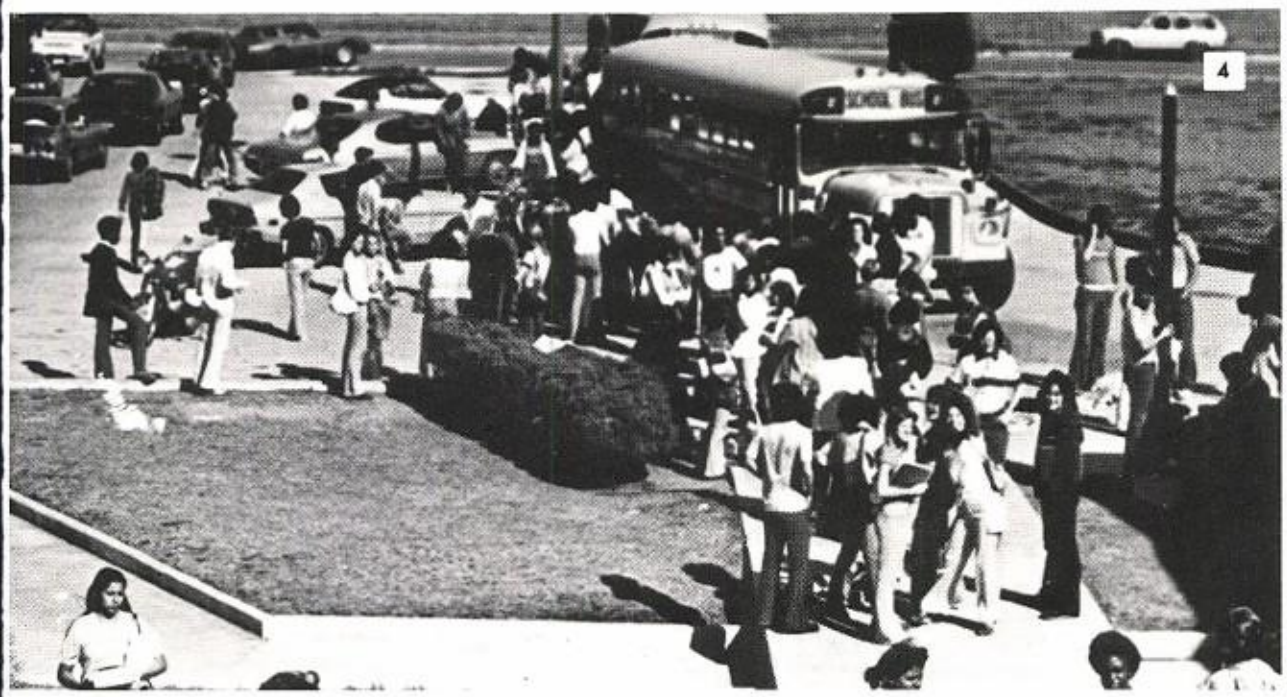
Jam slows cars

". . . This traffic jam . . . how I hate to be late . . . it hurts my motor to go so slow . . . before I get home my supper be cold . . ." Such is the lament of James Taylor in the song "Traffic Jam." And those thoughts were in the minds of TR drivers as they battled to leave the parking lots.

All too often the driver ahead seemed to "make a career" of waiting until all cars for a mile in any direction were clear from his path. The driver behind was not much help either. As it appeared, all he was interested in was seeing others wreck their cars as they dashed for that narrow opening in traffic.

Of course there always was the rude driver who cut in line and missed the side of another car by a fraction of an inch. Other drivers delighted in leaving the "entrance" instead of the "exit."

Those factors were enough to make any driver wish every student just would walk to school.



1 After a hard day of school Paul Rivard smiles as he climbs into his VW.
2 Linda Frump laughs as the traffic ahead begins to move.
3 This sight is very common about 3:35 p.m. as Riders rush to their cars and race for the exit.
4 Many students do not drive but instead rush to the buses for a good seat.

People Group welcomes newcomers to Roosevelt

"Welcome to TR" were the words many freshmen and newcomers heard from members of a new organization called the People Group.

Some of the methods club members used to welcome students were a disco dance and a welcoming assembly in the school cafeteria.

People Group numbered 80 members in its first official term at TR.

"Whenever any member or 'lost' person needs help all he has to do is to find room 128 and someone will assist him," Gary Bustamante said.

No president governs the group. A committee was set up to make decisions. People Group members participated in PAFLE workshops.

"People Group was formed by sociology students to help students communicate with one another," Carolyn Ney, sponsor, said.

Club life fun

Campus Life opened the year with its annual "burger bash." Nearly 200 students attended the bash in Paula Jones' house.

After the bash regular meetings began with about 60 students attending each meeting.

December marked a week-long ski trip for 20 students and sponsors. In El Dora, Colo., the group skied at Mt. Lake El Dora.

In January the club won the "RIOT" at Blossom Athletic Center. Competitors in the "RIOT" were members of San Antonio's Campus Life chapters. In the "RIOT" students played games similar to those on the television game show, "Almost Anything Goes."

February brought the "break-away" at Villita Assembly Hall. "Break-away" was "a student commitment to Christ" for the upcoming year. The event attracted 1,600 students and sponsors, a singing group and nationally known Christian speaker and writer Anne Kimmel. Campus Life brought to TR the nationally known Christian singing group, "Under New Management."

Riders catch dance 'fever'

Dances always seem to be places where friends can gather and have a good time and where couples can turn a weeknight into hours of dancing and partying.

The Howdy Dance, sponsored by the Student Council, has been traditional at TR. At the beginning of every year, newcomers and oldies can get together with friends to discuss the events of summer. Besides catching up on news, friends enjoyed the fun of meeting new people and anticipating the coming school year and what it would bring.

The Christmas dance, also sponsored by the council, and the Valentine dance, organized by the Sophomore Class, added to the social lives of Riders. Echoing the popularity of discotheques, and the recorded, rather than live music most play, sounds for the Christmas dance were provided by a juke box. The formal Valentine's Day dance in the Sheraton Inn boasted music by a stereo sound system.

A "farewell" dinner dance highlighted the last week of school for seniors. In the Hilton Palacio del Rio Hotel, the graduates dined and danced from 7 to 10 p.m.

Farce opens season of TR entertainment

A farsical melodrama and a serious drama offered entertainment at opposite ends of the theatrical spectrum for Roosevelt's Drama Department.

"The Wonderful Adventures of Don Quixote" featured Mitchell Noble in the title role and Johnny Pylant as his faithful servant, Sancho Panza.

In the play, Quixote and Panza go out into the world to try to make Quixote's dream come true — that of finding Lady Dulcinea del Toboso. Quixote's niece (Lisa Clepper) and housekeeper Josefina (Sandy Birdsall) consult Dr. Carrasco (David Whitehead) to try to bring Quixote back to reality.

'Glass Menagerie' features cast of four

Playing their parts with "a lot of sensitivity," according to Director John O'Neill, four seniors Dec. 16 and 17 starred in the Drama Department's presentation of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie."

In the play, Tom Wingfield (David Whitehead) is a sensitive young man who lives with his mother, Amanda (Carol Suggs) and sister Laura (Sandy Birdsall). Amanda's reminiscences of her girlhood with its "gentlemen callers" have adverse effects on Laura, who is painfully shy because of an almost nonexistent limp which she has magnified in her mind.

When Tom invites to dinner a friend from work, Laura's discovery that she knew Jim O'Connor (David Brown) in high school and that he was "the only boy she ever really liked" seems to Amanda inevitably the start of a romance. To Laura, his visit is a boost to her morale when he gives her a pep talk on her self-esteem.

O'Neill, commenting on the production, said the small cast number allowed more individual time for each member, making the play "ready, acting-wise, faster than any play we've ever done." Assistant director was Mitchell Noble.

"It was a great experience to be able to act in a play like 'Glass Menagerie'," cast member Brown said.

NFL debaters make points, earn points

"Therefore let it be resolved that the federal government should establish a comprehensive program to regulate the health care system in the United States."

To most this sounds like a bunch of mumbled garbage, but to TR's debaters this resolution was the root of many hours of argument at speech tournaments. Topics discussed ranged from National Health Insurance to pre-natal care.

Debaters as well as drama students competed in tournaments to earn points enabling them to join the newly formed Roosevelt chapter of the National Forensic League. Members accumulating enough points were awarded various pins of distinction.

Contests, however, were only the culmination of many hours of practice. Many of a debater's free nights were spent preparing for upcoming tournaments. Drama students spent several months perfecting plays and duet scenes for competition.

Their efforts did not go unrewarded. The UIL one-act play, "A Flea in Her Ear," won first place in zone and district competition. The plot detailed an anonymous love letter which sent two husbands into confusion. In search for the author, a case of mistaken identity turned up, resulting in double confusion. "A Flea in Her Ear" captured third in area competition.

In April the debate teams of Ruby Daniels and Jennifer Treat and Martin Dooley and Allen Tye advanced to the UIL regional meet in Corpus Christi, after taking first and second place awards in UIL district competition.

NFL members wrapped up the year with a picnic at Cyprus Lake.

AFS unites

"American Field Service is an organization which works to unite students of different countries, and Roosevelt did its part in working toward this goal," Valery Rutledge, AFS chapter president, said.

AFS raised money by selling flea market items in the North East County Fair. More money came from the annual fund drive — door-to-door on Halloween and advisory-to-advisory in May. Profits were used to send Roosevelt students to other countries.

Returning from a year in foreign countries were Carol Crump and Lori Pederson. Crump attended school in Brazil and Pederson studied at a private girls school in British Honduras.

Pederson plans to return to Honduras in the summer of 1979.

The Brazilian experience, Crump said, was one of "growing up."

"It helps you put everything in perspective. I learned a lot of things and I'm glad I went," the senior said.

TR greets Tokyo native

July 22 brought a new Rough Rider to America. She was Shinobu Shimizu of Tokyo, Japan, Roosevelt's foreign exchange student.

American food and clothes were some of the things Shimizu, affectionately called "Shinny" by friends, found interesting.

"Choosing my own subjects was one of the main differences between Japanese and American schools," she said. Enrolled in government, calculus, English and Spanish, Shimizu also was involved in Student Council and the American Field Service organization.

During the visit, she lived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Brudvik and their daughters, Roosevelt students Ann and Evelyn Brudvik.

One of the most exciting events in Rough Rider Country was Spirit Week. From Oct. 3-7 Rough Riders displayed their true spirit in support of a victory over the Churchill Chargers.

In lieu of such sport, students donned everything from beanies to mums. The colorful week began with denim and suspenders day. Tuesday followed with a variety of socks and sneakers and every type of hat imaginable. Teddy bears and kiddies clad in overalls invaded the school on Wednesday, followed by Thursday's jersey, button and ribbon day. The last day, red, white and blue day, some students were barely visible amid all the mums and balloons. Excitement and tension built, as students were only hours away from the big match.

Once dead and drab, the hallowed halls of TR became animated with banners and posters announcing the premeditated demise of the long-time arch rivals. This traditional practice provided "at-home" rivalry, with the annual hall and cafeteria decorating contest under way. Seniors won, of course, uniquely using giant game boards, dice and bowling lanes to carry out the theme "Games Riders Play."

Losing the game — by a close 23-25 — did not mean that everything the Rough Riders worked for accomplished nothing. It just showed that they still were winners because of all the support they gave their school. Without it, they would not have gone as far as they did.

Holiday brings food, football, turkey shoot

Thanksgiving meant different things to different people. To some it meant food, to some family and others football (morning, noon and night). Several Rough Riders became Longhorns or Aggies for a day when they attended that famous Thanksgiving weekend football clash. Lots of Longhorn bragging made its way into classes Monday when the score was in — Texas 58, Texas A&M 27.

But some TR students found other things to do — at school. The annual ROTC-sponsored turkey shoot saw students running down to the armory to fire a few shots between classes and at lunch. Student Council threw a party for residents of Southern Manor Nursing Home, with refreshments and songs.

Concerts, plays attract crowds

Movies and TV didn't make up all the entertainment in San Antonio. There also were concerts and plays to attend.

"Kiss" and "Mahogany Rush" concerts downtown drew TR audiences. The "Sex Pistols" staged a show at Randy's Rodeo on their controversial first (and last) American concert tour. The Sex Pistols, before their demise, were an example of the "punk rock" movement in England.

The Fiesta Dinner Playhouse opened to serve San Antonians fine food and a live theater. Among productions which have been staged were "The Odd Couple" and "Never Get Smart With an Angel." Earl Holliman, star of TV's "Police Woman," is part-owner of the Fiesta. Widely known actors of TV and movie fame came to San Antonio to perform at the playhouse.

Far out films popular

Some of the most popular films and television shows of 1977 and 1978 really were "out of this world."

"Star Wars" had virtually everything — a couple of valiant heroes, a princess, two robots and an evil villain. "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" showed Earth being visited by the inhabitants of a flying saucer.

In "Oh, God!" John Denver was visited by a divine presence who looked suspiciously like George Burns. Denver had little problem believing after "God" made it rain inside his car.

Other popular films this year were "Saturday Night Fever," "Annie Hall," and "The Rocky Horror Picture Show." Seeing weekly showings of TRHPS became a ritual for many TR students.

TV didn't have a very spectacular season, but it did broadcast a few good shows. Mini-series "Holocaust" was the docudrama of the Nazi slaughter of the Jews in World War II. "Soap" was condemned by church groups before it even went on the air.

Comic book superheroes also grabbed a fair share of the ratings. "Wonder Woman" still flew high and "The Incredible Hulk" earned incredible ratings. Likewise, "The Amazing Spider-Man" hung around for awhile.

A number of TV and movie fans waited semipatiently for the promised return of "Star Trek." Plans were announced for a motion picture version based on the long-running series about the crew of the good ship Enterprise.

TR sees world

Much occurred in 1978 to make the year memorable. Besides the usual events, such as seniors graduating, juniors receiving their rings and both enjoying the Junior-Senior prom, news events, national and close to home, affected the lives of the students at TR.

Students recalled a San Antonio blackout that wiped out power in the city for about two hours. Homebound boob-tube watchers found time on their hands. And students on the roads were advised to evacuate the streets for fear of loss of life and property. City Public Service said it wasn't supposed to happen.

A coal strike affected millions of Americans and cost them millions of dollars and their jobs. How did this affect Rough Rider Country? It hit the pocketbooks of many parents quickly in the form of higher utility rates.

"Foreign relations" between TR Texans and AFS students fared well, and on a larger scale, between Egypt and Israel, too. Menachem Began and Egyptian Prime Minister Anwar Sadat conducted peace talks.

Although life went on, a few great personalities passed on. Elvis Presley gave America its own type of music. Charlie Chaplin, the "little tramp," was a pioneer in the American theatre. Bing Crosby was a great American singer and entertainer.

Christmas quiet

Without the usual Christmas door decorating contest, Christmas was not that evident in the halls of Rough Rider Country.

It seemed that Christmas had been forgotten, but if a student really looked closely, the spirit was there.

Behind many classroom doors lay the Christmas spirit, a few trees and some decorations.

Home Economics Cooperative Education conducted a carnation sale, friends had their usual gift-giving sessions between classes and everyone shouted "Merry Christmas" greetings.

Student Council sponsored a food drive for TR custodians, Law Enforcement Club helped six underprivileged families on Christmas Eve, and the National Honor Society collected and wrapped gifts for children.

Although much of the glitter of the Christmas season was not present the quiet deeds of helping others made Christmas real again.

Keyettes give time, effort

"Keyettes are to be commended. Your club has a wonderful reason for being." This is what Judge Carol Haberman told Keyettes at their annual banquet in February at the Sheraton Motor Inn.

Keyettes, originally referred to as Keywanettes, are the female counterpart to the Key Club.

Keyettes were involved with numerous trips to Southern Manor Nursing Home, the Children's Home and the "Bridge," a guidance center for underprivileged teenagers. They donated their time to sponsor parties or perform odd jobs at each place.

Keyettes must be sophomores, juniors or seniors and must maintain a "C" average. The girls also must be active in other clubs, service or church groups.

Key Club dresses up for school

It wasn't senior "dress-up day," recruits from colleges weren't on campus and no one died, but Key Club members wore suits and ties anyway.

The every other Friday effort was short lived, but a project worthy of the all-male volunteer service organization sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

"We wore suits to set an example because blue jeans were taking over. Roosevelt was beginning to look like Blue Jean City." sponsor Cal Eichler said.

Requirements for membership in the club included a "C" or better average and sophomore, junior or senior standing.

During Christmas, members decorated Windsor Park Mall and raised $600 for individual projects.

Members' projects included painting trash cans and cleaning Ft. Sam Houston Park.

Choir expresses 'visions and dreams'

In its concert, "Visions and Dreams," choir performed a variety of songs. Combined choirs sang "On A Wonderful Day Like Today" and "Nothing Can Stop Me Now." Soloist Salinda Wrono sang "Nights Are Forever Without You," and Peggy Markham sang "If Love Is Real." Instrumentalists accompanied the singers since many recent popular songs were sung.

At UIL competition, the choir brought home more sweepstakes trophies than any other Texas choir in a single year. The Chorale and Chamber (boys and girls) II brought home the trophies. Director Mary Ann Winden took seven choirs to the contest, the greatest number of choirs taken by a single school in one year.

At Six Flags, the mighty Roosevelt choir was proclaimed one of the outstanding choirs in the nation. Chamber choir received a first division in concert and in the overall contest.

One of the judges told Director Mary Ann Winden that few choirs in the nation could beat them.

The choir members came back just in time to rehearse for their musical, "Once Upon A Mattress," with Danny Vimont as Prince Dauntless, Sherri Stephens as Princess Winnifred, Phillip Shiffren playing King Sextimus, Ann Gangai as Queen Aggravaine, Kerry Turner as the minstrel, Mary Beth Lefebvre as Lady Larkin and Mark Ambrose as Sir Harry. The play was about an unfortunate prince looking for a wife. Into his heart came Princess Winnifred, princess of the swamps. In order to become his bride, she had to pass a royalty test, given by Queen Aggravaine. The musical was based on the play, "Princess and the Pea."

Theatrical highlight of the spring was Choral Department's presentation of "Once Upon a Mattress," a musical comedy based on "The Princess and the Pea."

They also were assisted by the Drama Department and band for the production.

The comedy revolves around finding the prince a wife. All candidates for the position are screened by the queen, and though she says she wants the prince to marry, she refuses to find a suitable princess for him. When Princess enters the story, she is detested by the queen but loved by everyone else in the kingdom. Finally, she comes up with a test she believes no one can pass — except a true princess. The results of her planning and everyone else's planning — make up the musical-comedy.

Portraying Princess Winnifredd was Sherri Stephens. Prince Dauntless was Danny Vimont.

Other major performers were Ann Gangai as Queen Aggravaine, Phil Shriffrin as King Sextimus, Kerry Turner as the minstrel, Frank Rodriguez as the wizard, Mary Beth Lefebvre as Lady Larkin, Mark Ambrose as Sir Harry and Bud Halstead as the jester.

Break moves Riders outdoors

Spring break was a time set aside in the late part of March when some students turned from the academic way of life to a party-time spirit.

Some of the better known places students spent their time were Port Aransas, Canyon Lake, Northeast Preserve and the widely known Stinky Falls.

"I had a good time. Probably the best thing about it all was the chance to sleep late," Brenda Hartmann said.

On Easter Sunday a worship service was conducted by Trinity Church in the Roosevelt auditorium.

Although spring break was cut shorter this year by the late start of school, it did not dampen students' enthusiasm to get out and enjoy the warm Texas weather.

1 It was smooth sailing for many students who chose the coast as their recreation spot for spring break.

2 There were some blow out times for some students. Nevertheless, Scott Ziskovsky, Tim Cunningham and Tommy Rehkopf managed to make it to the coast.

Practice pays off

Students were everywhere, working with slide rules, rehearsing scripts, writing news stories, singing in the choir, playing in the band, typing, reciting poetry, debating and more. After they were through practicing, they could be found either resting or catching up on homework.

Many rehearsals for the drama one-act play entry, "A Flea In Her Ear," took place after school and at night, along with choir rehearsals which seemed to go on forever. Some students stayed up especially late to finish homework. On top of that workload, some students who were in both choir and band saw early morning marching practices. But all that work paid off, as the Riders proved they were the best at the UIL meet.

UIL tourneys boost TR

For the seventh consecutive year, TR swept UIL competition.

One-act play entry, "A Flea in Her Ear," won first place in the district contest and also first in zone competition.

Marching band won first division ratings in marching and inspection contests and symphonic band took first divisions in concert and sightreading contests to give the Rough Rider Band its sixth consecutive sweepstakes award. Choir took four "sweepstakes trophies," the largest number at the district meet and a record for the state.

At the district literary meet, TR took first, to beat the second place winner by 92 points. Journalists won more points than any other school in the district and sent two students to the regional meet. In science, Roosevelt took first and second places. Math students won first, second and third places in slide rule, and first in number sense. Alternates to regionals were in journalism, number sense, poetry interpretation, prose reading and typing.

To prepare for the UIL contests, Roosevelt attended several practice meets in January, February and March, including its own meet in March.

Vocational Fair educational fun

Vocational Fair was a memorable and fun occasion this year.

The main purpose of the fair was to increase students' awareness of Roosevelt's vocational programs.

For students interested in the programs, the fair provided an opportunity to learn and for students who weren't, it was a cold, nevertheless, welcome retreat from everyday classwork.

The fair also helped the vocational programs to earn money for their treasuries for local and out-of-state trips.

Vocational classes represented were vocational office education, industrial cooperative training-health occupations, auto mechanics, auto paint and body, cosmetology, distributive education, home economics consumer education, pre-law enforcement and the Homemaking Department.

Trips 'far out'

Theodore Roosevelt students — tooting horns in Louisiana, buying paintings in New Orleans, singing in Romania, taking pictures from the top of the World Trade Center in New York City. Louisiana, maybe, but the World Trade Center?

All were memorable moments in the lives of students out on "field trips" — TR style. In this case, "field" is appropriate, since the aforementioned trips took place out-of-state, and in one case, out-of-country.

Trips were planned to help students learn more about subjects they were taking, of course, but entertainment was a big part.

Band members competed in "Contra-band Days," a contest for bands from all over the South, in Lake Charles, La. French Club members went to New Orleans for a long weekend to take in French culture. Choir members had a once-in-a-lifetime experience in Romania, singing behind the Iron Curtain, and journalism students visited New York City for the Columbia Scholastic Press Association convention.

After returning from their adventures, students realized that education wasn't confined to within the walls of TR.

Last week crazy

Rock group "Kiss" members paraded around the campus in full attire, waving and smiling at on-lookers. "Jaws" terrified classmates while devouring a baby. And the cast of "Rocky Horror Picture Show" made a special guest appearance. 'Sound like events at Hollywood High School?'

It happened at nowhere else but TR May 16-19. All the strange sights provided fun and a change of pace for seniors during the annual Senior Week.

Through an administrative decision, the traditional "week" was shortened to four days: Tuesday's "sports day," Wednesday's "kiddie day," Thursday's "favorite character day" (the probable highlight of the week considering that the most imaginative participants received prizes for their efforts) and Friday's "dress-up day." A few seniors mischievously decided to include Monday in on the antics by wearing their caps and gowns.

Seniors were able to call it a year after that week of craziness, only having to return for exams (if necessary), advisory to turn in books, and graduation practice.

'Great' sums up senior show

"It was great," sums up the feelings of most participants in the senior show and "Dating Game."

The April show was a combination of fashion and entertainment. Senior models donned clothes to suit every occasion — from an evening at Chelsey's to the prom. A baseball game with a dazzling light show was the highpoint of the modeling section of the event.

In the "Dating Game" portion of the show, seniors Laura Bowen and Toby Paris won dates with Mike Murphy and Cathy Crawley of MacArthur High School. Terri Hill, government teacher, won a date with Bob Ragan, owner of the Bull Moose restaurant.

Paris prom theme

Carrying on with tradition, the Junior Class sponsored the most exciting social event of the year, prom night. The theme was "April in Paris," but the dance took place in San Antonio, at Turtle Creek Country Club.

The typical prom night began with dinner in a fine restaurant. After dinner, couples attended the prom, dancing to the music of Zapata. After dancing, the next stop generally was an early morning breakfast.

"One of the most important decisions to make after choosing a date, a dress, and a restaurant is the appropriate time to come home," a member of the prom committee said.

"Creating the prom was not so easy as you might think. You have to make sure that everyone is doing the work they were assigned to do," Junior Class President Felicia Ards said.

2 Since some dancing is rather strenuous, couples head for the punch bowl.

Senior life brings freedom

As the Senior Class of 1977 shuffled out, the Class of '78 tried on senior rings, entering into that year-long phase known as senioritis.

Senior status brought many privileges previously unknown to the student. To 18-year-olds, the signature on school forms and admission slips no longer was required. This dimension of freedom revealed itself in the larger ratio of senior absences, as some seniors felt compelled to break the school routine either by visiting Stinky Falls or just sleeping through the day at home.

As seniors, students had the right to participate in several events that were exclusive to them — the "dating game" and style show assembly, organized by Senior Class Sponsor Laura Curry, the class picnic and the senior dance in the International Ballroom atop the Hilton Palacio del Rio Hotel. Seniors also were entitled to leave class several times a month to attend presentations by colleges eager for their enrollment. Perhaps the most well-liked privilege was "senior week," during which twelfth graders were given license to act as foolish as they pleased. Many paraded down the halls of TR attired as cowboys, baseball players, rock stars, Disney characters, nuns, soldiers and a world of other enchanting characters, sometimes created from attic treasures. Others simply wore cutoffs. No matter which way of dress was preferred, a water pistol was the constant companion of every senior. (Some seniors, however, had their pistols confiscated by administrators when their attacks became too bold.)

Graduates recall events

The next week seniors were on holiday, waiting for that night when they would receive their diplomas. Graduation was May 29 in Blossom Athletic Center. As the graduates filed in, each thought of the past year — attending football games and throwing register tape when a touchdown was scored, floating down the hall with senior balloons during spirit week, playing Santa during a Christmas charity program, receiving and giving carnations anonymously on Valentine's Day, frayed nerves the night before UIL district meet, cheering on a championship baseball team. All of these were memories seniors took with them.

Heavy rains stir excitement

Perhaps the most exciting part of graduation was trying to make it there on time. Most students were caught in a downpour which lasted approximately an hour. As a result of the heavy rains, a majority of the graduates arrived 10 minutes before graduation exercises were to begin. They were lined up quickly, however, and ceremonies began on time. The fallen curls and squeaky shoes of those who ran across the long parking lot to the building were the only tell-tale signs of the wet night.

Seniors win $800,000 in aid

Valedictorian and commencement speaker was Cadet Commander Charles Delcambre. He was graduated with a near perfect grade point average. Salutatorian was Adrienne Ognibene. Carol Suggs delivered a memorial speech in honor of senior Robert Kaiser who died of cancer a week before commencement exercises. The main address was delivered by North East Independent School District Trustee Tom Winn.

Seniors also took such educational talents with them as falling asleep while appearing to have their eyes open, reproducing 36 trig assignments in a matter of a few hours, and writing a three-page essay test on a novel that was handed out, but conveniently forgotten in the recesses of an overcrowded locker.

Graduating with pride, the Senior Class was offered more than $800,000 in scholarships, produced six National Merit finalists, and inducted 81 seniors into the National Honor Society, the largest enrollment in TR's history.

Riders earn best record since 1970

Rider football team finished with a record of 7-3, TR's best mark since 1970. After convincing wins over Jay and Sam Houston in their first two games, the Riders fell to highly-touted San Angelo Central 35-29 in a most exciting contest. The Riders were 5-2 in district play, as they bested Alamo Heights, San Marcos, Seguin, Clemens and MacArthur while falling to Churchill in the final moments and also losing to Lee. It was a year when the Riders were inches away from a 9-1 record at least. Two last second losses to San Angelo Central and Churchill could easily have gone the other way.

SJG grabs state title

San Juan Guard captured the top award in the Texas State Championship Drill Meet at Texas A&M University, the first such title for TR. Nearly 40 teams competed for the title.

"We feel quite honored to have won the unique Texas State Championship because nothing short of sheer perfection was demanded of us," Charles Delcambre said of his team.

At the first drill meet of the season, Delcambre earned a first place for demonstration of leadership ability as commander of the San Juan Guard. Other individual awards went to Larry Stegall, second, commander; and Charles Rifenbury, individual drill. They earned two firsts in basic drill. In precision drill the Triple "R" Guard and novice division received second ratings. Gaining thirds were the open division and the San Juan Guard.

Cavaliers boost spirit, numbers

Cavaliers, Roosevelt's pep squad, gained discipline, awards and school support through their year of participation, As a result of the boost in pride more and more girls joined. Five seniors were members, which was more than in recent years. All five seniors' reward for so many years of effort spent in Cavaliers resulted in officer positions.

In Austin during Haden's Half Time Camp, Cavaliers won first overall, three superior group ribbons, and four excellent individual awards. Capt. Laura Bowen earned an honorable mention.

Cavaliers raised $1,619 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association during the Labor Day telethon. The 12 officers who participated in the fund raising drive event manned telephones at the El Tropicana Hotel for two hours.

Girls show spirit

Supporting Rider athletics throughout the year, the varsity cheerleaders proved loyal as they constantly were present at most athletic events, regardless of the time or place. Senior head cheerleader Janet Skinner, senior Mari Flynn, senior Beth Anderson, senior Laura Reams, and juniors Lisa Cupps and Elaine Munoz formed the cheering squad.

"The football games were the most fun and I'm sure most students feel the same way. There's just something exciting about a Roosevelt game," Skinner said.

Boys lead yells

The yell, "We carry our Big Stick," was heard often from five senior "big stick" carriers. Performing during the football season as well as the memorable baseball season, the carriers carried the stick up and down the grandstands after each Rider touchdown. The crowd responded with the famous cry as school spirit reached its peak.

"Who is we?" was the other popular chant led by the carriers which aroused fans and fired-up the crowd. The five carriers were John Murray, John Herbig, Greg Alba, Fred Remmert and Carlos DeJesus, captain.

Athletic group sponsors games

Fellowship of Christian Athletes was not widely known by most students, but if it hadn't been for them, the senior-faculty basketball and softball games would not have been played.

Both games, which were FCA's job to organize, were closely contested games. The senior cagers downed the faculty by seven points in the basketball game, and the softball game ended in a 3-3 tie. When the faculty quit the seniors were declared the winners, the first time that the seniors have defeated the faculty in a softball game.

JV tackles year

Posting a 6-3 record, the JV football team gained invaluable experience as it prepared for future varsity play. Opening the season against Jay, the gridders prevailed 14-6, as Greg Zolninger scored on a one-yard quarterback sneak for the winning score. Other wins included Sam Houston 24-6, Madison 34-12, Alamo Heights 27-0, San Marcos 34-6, and Clemens 44-12. Against Clemens, Leonard Collins swept around end for a 60-yard touchdown scamper, and later caught a pass from Zolninger for a 30-yard touchdown play.

Losses came against Seguin 24-14, Churchill 14-12, and Lee 27-0.

Frosh football faces problems

Freshman football had its problems through a rocky season which left just two wins to remember the year by.

After losing their first four games to Churchill, MacArthur, Lee and Jay, the frosh came alive and downed the Marshall Rams 14-6. Later, the young gridders gained their second win against Holmes, 20-18, as Bay Bay McClinton swept around end for one touchdown and caught a pass for another. Jeff Ricks scored the only other touchdown of the day for the team. Jay Shuttlesworth moved the team into scoring position several times with long, yard-gaining runs.

Frosh win trophy

With "hustle and spirit" the freshman volleyball team captured the district title.

JV won a second place trophy at the North East tournament by defeating 11 teams with only two losses.

The freshman record stood at 18-3 with losses only to MacArthur, Edison and Lee. JV record closed at 11-12.

Both teams boasted a 73 per cent spiking record. For an above average percentile, 60 percent is considered outstanding.

Practice helpful

Football players were not the only athletes at work in the summer of 1977.

Three weeks before school began, varsity girls practiced four hours a day for the coming District 32-AAAA season.

With the advent of the school year, practices no longer lasted all morning, but were scheduled from 7:45 to 9 a.m. and from 3:45 to 5:30 p.m.

Mid-season record was 3-3 with wins over Sam Houston, Holmes and East Central. Later victories were over Lanier, Judson and Holmes.

All-district honors went to Gladia Hollis. Kathy McKenzie received honorable mention.

"They are a young team," Coach Lindy Sorrell said. "Seven players on the varsity team were sophomores."

The team closed the season with a 9-18 record. Late season wins were against Alamo Heights, Seguin and Clemens.

Eagles cop tourney

"Wrestling Eagles" this year once again were awesome as they grappled their way to the state finals in Austin.

Perhaps the biggest win was the Dr Pepper Invitational Wrestling Tournament. With 16 schools and 150 wrestlers participating, the Eagles won the tourney with 144 points, edging strong Lanier High School of Austin, which compiled 138½ points. Brett Gillespie, 119, and Bill Williamson, 132, finished first in their weight classes.

The Eagles, coached by Jim Ricker, an advertising executive, received no financial aid from the school district. All funding necessary for the Eagles to compete in the Southwest Conference was earned by team members from tournament entry fees, admission charges and various sales.

Other sports fill free time

Other sports played a major role at Roosevelt in 1978. Students who couldn't or didn't participate in school-related sports filled up their spare time by doing their own thing somewhere else.

Major sports this year included skate boarding, ice skating at the Ice Haus and frisbee throwing.

Tyson's team posts 20-plus victories

After rolling to an 11-4 record through their first 12 games, varsity basketball Riders cooled down the stretch in district, but finished 11 games over .500.

Once again Coach Jerry Tyson's team won 20-plus games, a feat Tyson has accomplished every year he has been at Roosevelt.

The highlight of the season came when the cagers won the South San Tourney, in which the closest opposition came in four wins was 22 points. Senior Post Preston Gant was most valuable player of the tourney.

"I think if there had been more teamwork when we played we would have had a better chance in district," Gant said.

Looking to the future, Tyson said he thought the year was a good one in many respects. The young players, he said, "gained a lot of experience."

"The team is building up to be a good one, and next year should be a winning year," Tyson predicted, since starters Mike Ballew, Glen Kendig and Curtis Thomas will be returning.

Cagers third in 32-AAAA

On the heels of MacArthur and Seguin all year, the Riders never quite surpassed the two and finished both halves of district play in third place.

In the first half of district play, TR finished 5-2, while MacArthur and Seguin notched 6-1 records. The second half the Riders dropped to 4-3 once again to finish third behind MacArthur and Sequin.

Cagers second in district play

Heavy on sophomores, the junior varsity basketball squad saw an excellent season.

The November to February season finished with a 24 win, 8 loss record, to place second in district. The team also came in second at the San Antonio Independent School District (SAISD) tournament and second in the Marshall High School junior varsity tournament.

Contributing strongly to the team were Steve Ambrose, Scott Burgess, Larry Hanson, Harold Litzner and Jeff Simmons. The squad numbered 16 sophomores and three juniors. Litzner and Ambrose showed their talents in varsity games as well.

"They were one of the greatest bunches of kids I've ever coached," Coach James Whatley said.

Track gains recognition

With the help of senior sprinter Mike Johnson, the boys track team gained a dose of recognition unequalled in past years. Johnson finished sixth in the 100-yard dash at the state meet and also qualified for state in the 220-yard dash. Johnson set school records in both events.

Other standouts included Tony Beigel, best high jump in the city at 6'6", Mark Ricks, best discus throw, and Bryan Dausin, fourth best discus throw in the city.

Finch state qualifier

With Vickey Finch repeating her state qualifying feats of last year along with the 880 relay team also qualifying for state, the girls track team competed in a most successful season.

At the district meet, Finch won the long jump and the triple jump, and took second in the 220. The 880 relay team of DeAnn Roberts, Donna Hutchings, Liz Stopper and Finch won its event.

At the regional meet in Corpus Christi, Finch finished second in the long jump and the 880 relay team finished second to qualify for state.

At the state meet, Finch failed to place in the long jump and the 880 relay team also failed to place.

Marathoners take district

Boys cross-country team, last year a young and inexperienced squad that took fourth in district, put it all together in 1977 to win the District 32-AAAA title. The Riders then took tenth in regionals to place in the top three teams from San Antonio.

Strong man for the team was Donald Davenport, a senior who placed second in district. Davenport, Tim Parma and Tod Dicks placed among the top 10 individuals at the district meet. At regionals Davenport placed 25th out of nearly 150 runners.

"The main reason the team did so well was because of its depth," Coach Raymond Johnson said. Able reserves such as Layne Towery always were ready to fill in at a varsity spot if necessary.

The team looked forward to a rebuilding year in 1978 because four varsity teammates were graduated.

Girls run third

Girls cross country team improved with the strength of its running this year, so much so that it placed third in District 32-AAAA competition.

"Practicing every day was hard work but it was worth it. It takes a great deal of stamina to run some of the last miles, but most of us stick it out," Mary Lucas, a team member, said.

The girls practiced in the morning, first period and after school during the training season.

"Jogging that much makes me feel tired, but I also feel better physically and mentally," Joann Wolken said.

Number of netters soars

More people get into the tennis scene every year. The roll of the Roosevelt tennis team testified to that, growing to twice its former size. Growth of the sport came about because of several reasons.

One reason so many people began to look into the inner game was that they constantly were exposed to the bright lights of the professional game. When Connors and "Nasty" seemed to be having such fun and making big bucks at the same time, who could resist?

Competition was another impetus for the courtward migration. Tennis offered some of the most intense rivalry and personal crusading to be had in high school sports. No feeling compares, the players said, to smashing across a perfect serve or dribbling one over the net to devastate an opponent.

Students also took up the racket in pursuit of fun and fitness. The two really promoted each other. It seemed players derived pleasure from exercise that did not involve breaking bones.

Over all, tennis team was a memorable experience for the students on these pages. Participation produced among them that much more camaraderie and spirit. The people who played tennis raised the livability of the whole year and helped to make Roosevelt a more animated place.

Tennis takes work

Tennis teams could be seen on the courts all year long, practicing to perfect their games.

Netters tolerated summer's oppressive sun and braved the winter chills in their sweats for the sake of improving their serves, forehands and backhands. Dedicated team members practiced more than 20 hours a week and as player Mark Boyd said, "It takes a lot of work."

Dedication to the cause resulted in victory for three varsity players as Mark Boyd and Tommy Forrest took third in doubles competition at district and Karen King advanced to girls semifinals at regionals.

Players attended meets in Houston, Austin and Corpus Christi as well as competitions at other schools in San Antonio.

Although it paid off in personal satisfaction, physical fitness and victory for tennis players, the sight of team members coming in tired and sweaty from hours of practice proved that it wasn't achieved without hard work and diligence.

Golf teams travel state for meets

Traveling all over the state to compete in eight tournaments, the golf team placed in three. The team ranked third at the San Marcos tournament, fourth in the Del Rio Invitational and sixth in the San Antonio Independent School District tournament.

Jeff Fletcher set a Roosevelt record for 1978 by shooting the lowest tournament score with a 70 at the Del Rio Invitational.

Other tournaments in which the team participated were in Seguin and Austin.

The team also played in the North East Invitational at Turtle Creek and the Insurance Youth Classic at Pecan Valley.

Coach Al Moravits said his outstanding players were Sue Clark, Ellen O'Brien, Becky Vann, Jeff Flecher, Tony Lobasso and Erick Dismuke.

Baseball team district champ

Even before the baseball season started, virtually every sportscaster in the local media predicted the Roosevelt Rough Rider baseball team would be the city champs. The Athletic Department seemed to be charged with static electricity in anticipation of the first game of the season against Holmes.

The excitement must have been overwhelming and the players too anxious, because Roosevelt lost the very first game of the season.

After that first game things settled down and the team pulled together. Not a single game in the 32-AAAA district competition was lost or tied. Excellent pitching from Gordy Gesell, Bo Hawkins, Terry Jahns, Phil Ricks, Ernie Santos and David Talamantez contributed to the Rough Riders 26-1 district record, as did the skilled fielding and batting of the entire team.

TR wins bi-district

Varsity baseball team won two out of three games against Jefferson to win the bi-district 32-AAAA title.

By qualifying for bi-district play Roosevelt became the only baseball team to go undefeated in district play.

With the higher level of competition in bi-district play, scores were much lower. To help insure victory ace right-hander Gordy Gesell, who averaged 10 strikeouts per game, was sent to the mound. The Riders clenched the final game with a score of 5 to 2 and from there advanced to city play against South San.

Riders put in tough hours

Rough Rider baseball team didn't become the 32-AAAA city champs by luck. Countless hours were spent after school working toward their 26-1 winning streak.

Of course running sprints wasn't as glorious as hearing the roar of the crowd, but practice is what made the Rough Riders great.

At times the players must have begun to resent the fatigue their practice brought on. The coaches expected nothing less than perfection from them, and perfection was what they got.

Season ends with state

Varsity Rough Riders completed their '78 slate in competition for the 32-AAAA state title where they were bested two out of three games by Corpus Christi Moody.

Throughout district and city competition the Riders performed with clockwork precision under the leadership of veteran pitcher David Talamantez. The level of competition was so high that spectators almost could feel an electrical charge in the air.

It was an all-out show of school spirit and competitive effort, and it paid off. Roosevelt didn't win state, but took the 32-AAAA city title with the best win-loss record the Riders ever scored.

Coach Irl Kincaid said the team was successful because few of the "best" players from previous years had been graduated and new '78 positions were filled by the best of the former JV ranks.

Athletes move to state meet

Special Education students who were victorious in the North East Special Olympics advanced to a higher field of honor, the city-wide Special Olympics April 16 at Northside Stadium.

Athletes competed in running events, standing long jumps and tug of war. Roosevelt's competitors garnered six first place medals.

Out of the 22 athletes at the city meet, 15 placed and advanced to the state meet.

Students race to victory

"On your mark, get set, GO!" At the sound of these words competitors were off running, jumping, tugging and throwing, but most of all they were having fun.

Having fun, that was the purpose of the '78 Special Olympics March 8 at Lee High School. Classified in age groups, competitors participated in events such as standing long jumps, 400-meter run, 200-meter run, 100- and 50-foot dashes, 25-meter dash, softball throw, 400-meter relay and the tug of war.

Volunteers from Roosevelt accompanied the athletes and cheered them on to 14 first places, six second places and two third place finishes. Students who placed advanced to city competition.

"Last year only eight students advanced to state," sponsor Sally Whitehouse said. "This year all 22 students are going. It's terrific!"

"MORE THAN 200 RESIDENTS OF ROUGH RIDER COUNTRY WEREN'T SENIORS. JUNIORS, SOPHOMORES, OR FRESHMEN. BUT LEARNING, PARTICIPATION, AND SPORTS WOULDN'T HAVE EXISTED WITHOUT THEM. WHAT DID THEY SAY?"

Faculty devoted much time and energy to the student body. Our outlooks were expanded by their efforts — our minds filled with "capsules of wisdom" during morning announcements and thoughts of "warm fuzzies" in confluent education groups. Such unusual forms of enrichment were the brainstorms of those who said . . .

Trustees serve district

Existing solely for the purpose of serving students in North East schools, the Board of Trustees' responsibilities include authorizing budgetary expenditures, directing Curriculum development and approving personnel appointments and changes.

Board President Lexie Collie is former president of the North East PTA Council and is recognized for her contributions to education and civic endeavors.

Vice president George Wenglein is active in the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and in banking. Secretary Bernard Rose is active in the Robert E. Lee Booster Club and the Jewish Community Center.

Donald W. Harris is a member of the Bexar County Federation of School Boards, which he was instrumental in forming. He has served as president of the board twice. Robert O'Connor has been a member of the board for 10 years. He holds positions of leadership in the San Antonio and state bar associations. He recently was the state's highest Masonic official, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Texas. Dr. Pat Shaw is active in the field of environmental science, and is associated with the Brooks Air Force Base School of Aerospace Medicine. Tom T. Winn has been a trustee since 1974 and last year was board president. Winn is involved in residential and commercial development.

Dr. Ivan Fitzwater served as superintendent from 1971 to 1977. Fitzwater, now a professor of education at Trinity University, still is active with North East students and meets frequently with student councils to discuss current issues.

Heading the board, superintendent Ed L. West has served the North East District for 12 years, formerly as assistant superintendent and deputy superintendent.

Five chiefs keep order

"Monday is the greatest day of the week," according to Asst. Principal Roy Benavides. That motto as well as many other "thoughts for the day" pervaded TR's halls every morning during announcements.

Benavides, however, did not spend all day thinking up clever sayings. He saw busy work day as administrator responsible for discipline of ninth and tenth grade students. He also scheduled events on the school calendar.

Asst. Principal Wesley Davis was in charge of discipline for eleventh and twelfth graders. Not limiting himself to that, however, Davis was active in the Confluent Education and Parent and Family Life Education (PAFLE) programs.

Students wouldn't know which classes to attend, and even if they did, wouldn't receive grades in them, if it weren't for R. Boyd Vaughn. The only one of three assistant principals not in charge of discipline, Vaughn presided over all data processing duties, among them schedules, grades, attendance records and federal forms.

Among Administrative Aide Albert Nunn's duties were supervision of the attendance office and solving of locker conflicts. Although this may sound relatively easy, many an hour was spent tracking down and disciplining all those who "skipped out."

The assistant principals and aide help ease the load of Principal Thomas Moseley. As chief executive of TR, Moseley spends much of his time off-campus at meetings to be sure everything runs smoothly on-campus.

Secretaries prove invaluable

Answering phones, typing, filing and taking and delivering messages kept secretaries busy during their jobs as the administrators' right hands.

Secretaries not only had to deal with administrators' problems and keeping their offices in order, but coped with hundreds of bewildered students who asked hundreds of questions.

Data processing aides sent report cards out on time and made sure no errors appeared on them. The school bookkeeper took care of financial matters and kept everything "in balance" for TR's scores of clubs, organizations, departments and faculty.

Secretaries, counselors and clerks include 1 Ima Hafernik, school bookkeeper; 2 Mary Alice Dentler, counselor to students with last names from E to K; 3 Frances Evans, counselor to students with last names from R to Z; 4 Buddy Rosene, vocational counselor; 5 Frances Reed, counselor to students with last names from L to Q; 6 Shirley Kearns, counselor to students with last names from A to D; 7 Pat Beyer, data processing clerk; 8 Mary Ann Peterson, main office clerk; 9 Helen Olson, counselors' secretary; 10 Joyce Pate, secretary to Thomas Moseley, principal; 11 Billie Clark, secretary to Assistant Principals Wes Davis and Roy Benavides and 12 Norma Hill, counselors' secretary.

As usual, counselors proved an invaluable source of inspiration to the student body, and especially to that endangered species, the class of '78. Counselors not only helped to correlate the data of the past in relation to the present, but to combine everything into a plan for the future as well.

One of the main functions of the counselors was to study the records and profile of each student in order to design a proper curriculum — the classes everyone took this year, remember? Although some grumbling undoubtedly went on about classes, everyone's course of study was guided by the experienced, educated hands of the cousseling staff.

Counselors help provide motivation

Counselors also aided juniors and seniors in their quest for college, both in areas of admissions and financial aid. Many a scholarship passed from the hands of Shirley Kearns to deserving seniors.

Another important area of counseling responsibility was that of vocational and career opportunities. The counselors were prepared for 800 graduates, many of whom wanted some idea of what their careers would be. Any student could use the shelves full of booklets on the subject of employment. Filmstrips also offered much data on work possibilities.

Staff of seven keeps books

Aiding in the smooth operation of the school library, attendance office, lost book room and business education office are seven women.

Three of these women, Cordelia Cantu-Withoff, June Ross and Myrlene Willis, worked in the library, adding new shelves, keeping accurate lists of fines and overdue books, processing incoming magazines and books and checking the new book return in the "A" wing.

Nelda Martin, Rose Shields and Anna Ray kept accurate attendance records, the basis for school funding. Duties included clearing absences and assisting parents and faculty in quickly locating students.

Norma Witte is book clerk, keeps records on lost books and aides Asst. Principal Roy Benavides.

In the business education office is aide Jo Ann Evans. She assists business teachers in operating duplicating machines and other office equipment.

People, too!

"Mule train!" echoed through the TR auditorium. Students, watching English teacher Charlie Simons on stage, began to realize that teachers are people, too.

Simons, for instance, recently was married to math teacher Emily Travis. Jacquelyn Lipski and her husband adopted a girl in the spring. Lipski enjoys gardening as well as renovating old homes.

Many English and foreign language teachers have outside hobbies. Pauline Staggers enjoys bowling and working acrostic puzzles. Lillian Parker likes to play bridge, and Diane Denk plays guitar. Bill and Carolyn Gisler enjoy music, and Pat Rutledge prefers riding motorcycles and electric football.

Math teachers aren't real people! They don't breathe, don't speak any language besides quadratic equations and polynomials. And they don't do anything but math all the time, right?

Wrong.

TR's math teachers have proved themselves real people (and interesting ones at that.) When not teaching math students what's what, they participate in sports — the most popular ones, tennis, golf and swimming.

Three teachers — Juliana Strain, Carolyn Smelley and Sylvia Foster — share an interest in aerobic dancing, and Foster's study has led her to the level of instruction in the art. Algebra teacher Russ Greiner takes time out from his busy schedule to work with handicapped Boy Scouts.

Other interests common to the department's faculty include gardening, sewing, travel ("anytime possible" as Jo McCollum puts it) and music.

Which all goes to prove that math teachers are human!

Scientists speak

Roosevelt teachers have several interesting pastimes.

Frederick Atchely belongs to the San Antonio Geneological Society where he thinks he traced his roots back to the time of Charlemagne.

Some teachers can't seem to get away from school. Besides traveling, reading and attending live theater, Noreen Cox also is working on her master's degree at UTSA. Stan Hutto has a part time job researching cholera at UTSA.

Other teachers prefer nature. Frances Sprabary lives in the country and raises show horses. Bettina Bair describes herself as a "nature observer" who "looks at the things that other people miss." Beverly Shideler likes "anything to do with the out-of-doors." Barbara Simmons helps her husband raise guinea pigs and likes frogs — as long as they're dead.

Some teachers are physical fitness buffs. Cindy McCreless and Phyllis Hickey both play tennis. "I love to water ski," Peggy Willmann said.

Robert Perkins used to teach math and physics in the U.S. Air Force. After retiring, he became a high school teacher. Iris Wilkins is an amateur photographer, and Linda Fowler likes ceramics and the guitar.

Some teachers aren't picky at all. Cal Eichler said of his interests, "You couldn't list them all." Tom Marsh said "anything I happen to be interested in."

Evidently, teachers manage to keep busy when they're not grading papers.

Teachers enjoy varied interests

Instructing is just one dimension of the lives of TR's social studies teachers.

Some teachers such as Janet Stanberry and Bob Bupp square dance. They both belong to the group "Flying Squares." Bupp also is an avid Rocky Mountain hiker.

Jack Renwick busies himself in his spare time in silver smithing, Indian beadwork, leather tooling and archery. Flying airplanes is Allan Lavelle's favorite pastime. He also enjoys tinkering with their engines. Last year he was one of five teachers chosen from the United States to be an exchange teacher to the U.S.S.R. One of this year's representatives to the North East Teachers Association was Linda Aaron. She is sponsor of the debate and chess teams at TR.

Teaching was just a fraction of the busy year.

Teachers live outside school

Students of TR lived in a constant whirl of parties, discos and football games. They attended movies, went out to dinner and frequented Canyon Lake. But what about teachers? Is there something more to their lives than grading test papers? To what places do they vanish after the 3:35 bell? For the fine arts teachers of Roosevelt, life went on — and in some pretty interesting manners.

Jerry Frey escaped in the after-school hours to her ranch where she spent time painting ranch scenes such as the breaking of horses and the branding of cattle. John O'Neill chose a different means of self-expression. He was involved in several productions of the San Antonio Little Theater and was offered a lead role in Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman."

Choir director and organist for Christ Lutheran Church was none other than TR's own choir director, Mary Ann Winden. Kyrenda Allison taught classes in calligraphy in a PTA Adult Education program and at Joske's. Scuba-diving was also among her interests. To prepare middle school musicians for futures in the Rough Rider Band, Joel Burkhardt traveled every day to instruct Krueger and White middle school students.

Teachers mind 'own business'

The many facets of secretarial life are not all that encompasses the lives of business teachers.

Mary Crain is a member of the Eisenhauer Road Baptist Church softball team. Dodie Miller teaches shorthand in adult education classes and is a faculty representative to the North East Teachers Association.

UIL sponsor for typing is Fadra Manning. She also is summer youth director at the First United Methodist Church of New Braunfels and is a member of a bunco club. She travels to work every day from her home situated on Lake McQueeney.

Alexander Halber is a member of a square dancing group called "the Tapeworms" and in June traveled to Oklahoma City to attend the National Square Dancers' Convention. Halber is treasurer of the confluent education team at TR.

Business teachers include 1 Dodie Miller — Shorthand I, typing; 2 Lois Dorchester — Typing I, business organization and management, business law, record keeping; 3 Martha Hennig — Bookkeeping I, II, notetaking, practical typing; 4 Al Halber — Bookkeeping I, data processing, Typing I; 5 Fadra Manning — Typing I, salesmanship, record keeping; 6 Sandra Swope — general business and Typing I, bookkeeping; 7 Frances Heath — department chairwoman, Typing II, clerical practice, business office experience.

Faculty works as students do

Teaching is only one aspect of teachers' lives.

Norman McPherson and Howard Goldstucker at Christmas became night executives at Dillard's department store for the holiday season. Harold Burris is another who has a sideline job. He buys and sells Mercedes Benz automobiles.

Jerry Hylin teaches cabinet making and refinishing in the North East adult education program. Jeff Miller is vice president of the Optimist Club of Harmony Hills and an active Shriner. He also is working on his doctorate in vocational education at Texas A&M University.

Secretary of district five of Texas Vocational Teachers Association is Samette Lindsay, who also busies herself with sewing, golfing and bridge. Charles Pettibon is another who is involved in adult education. He teaches an auto mechanics class for women.

Faculty pursues varied interests

"Because they enjoy seeing kids improve is why most coaches chose their profession," Jerry Tyson, head basketball coach, said.

But regardless of how dedicated members of the TR coaching staff are to coaching, they aren't "teachers" all the time.

Track coach Joe Gross, for instance, is a licensed realtor who sells real estate, he said, "every chance I get." Gross also is a 1970 graduate of TR.

Most of the male coaches, including ROTC rifle team instructor Sgt. Maj. Woodrow Stewart, said they spend their free time hunting and fishing, but female coaches' interests were more diversified. Coach Lindy Sorrell experiments with photography as a hobby and is working on a master's degree at Texas Woman's University. Katherine Boemer spends her spare time working on wooden ornaments and key chains which she sells to her friends. Mary Brasher enjoys gardening and music and Carol Searight enjoys traveling.

The health, P.E. and ROTC teachers, however, are not the only educators with outside interests. As you might expect, the home economics instructors practice what they teach.

Most home ec teachers devote their spare time to gardening and sewing. Mary Lou Roemer, a fan of aerobic dancing, placed second in the Heart Association dance marathon at Wonderland Shopping Mall. Diane Krause completed a master's degree in curriculum instruction at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Special people keep things rolling

Catering to nearly 1,100 hunger-enraged persons every day was never an easy job. "Interesting, but never easy," claimed Lorene Byington, cafeteria staff leader.

The long day started at 6 a.m., at which time the staff took up with the pots and pans and began preparing the meal to be served to three separate lunch crowds.

Cafeteria staff not only had to withstand the heat of the kitchen and the pressures of food preparation, but also had to cope with constant battles at the serving lines — doling out the day's dish out to picky eaters.

Custodians' job important

"A custodians' work is never done" — an adaption rightfully to place into perspective the role of some very important people in Rough Rider Country.

Numbering 20, TR's troup of custodians arrived on campus four days a week, every day at 6 a.m. (for the day staff shift), ready to take on the responsibilities waiting — and there were many.

Preparing the school for the 7 a.m. onslaught entailed everything from turning on lights to letting the administrators in. During the day, hard work continued as something always needed to be fixed and deliveries always were arriving. And just because the school day ended at 3:35 didn't mean quitting time for all. For the night-watch shift, the "day" ended sometime late in the evening, thus proving that the old adage holds true for many people from all walks of life.

'WHILE MOST STUDENTS DID WELL, SOME DID EVEN BETTER!'

TR's crop of students included many gifted souls who strived for perfection and because of their efforts made a name for themselves and a bigger name for the school. Once again, Patriots were acclaimed as one of the nation's finest precision dance teams. PSM students reached new highs in the brain department, adding more math trophies to their collection. Rough Rider Bryan Dausin was named as San Antonio's best offensive lineman. Group effort or individual achievement -- either way, Teddy's folks were able to say

Honor societies aid community

"I want to make people who have extra gifts aware of those gifts so that they can help others," Jacqueline Lipski said about her sponsorship of National Honor Society.

NHS, with 48 members, required a 90 overall average for juniors, and an 88.5 average for senior members. Membership also was determined by the individual's character, service and leadership ability. Students were screened by a board of teachers containing representatives from each department who set the minimum standards for membership.

Throughout the year NHS members helped the community. The club's primary project was tutoring students who were having trouble in their academic classes. Anytime before or after school, students could receive help with their studies. If the student's study problem was serious he was assigned an individual tutor with whom to work one-to-one.

Tutoring, however, was not the only way NHS members shared their gifts. Throughout the year they participated in several community service projects including selling candy for the Kidney Foundation, stuffing stockings for the Kidney Center, helping "Elf Louise" in her toy collection at Christmas, visiting a nursing home and helping the participants of the Special Olympics. Most members participated individually in community projects as well. One optional individual activity involved being a "secret pal" to a teacher.

NHS was not the only club that helped the community, though. National Junior Honor Society members visited the alcoholic ward at the Bexar County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center in the spring. Club membership required an "A" average in academics and a "B" average in other subjects. Twenty-five members were active. Their final project of the year was helping teachers raise money to pay for an NHS breakfast in the spring. NJHS members sold goods baked by the teachers, which helped to pay for a cookbook containing recipes donated by teachers which was sold to parents and PTA members.

Student Council sees active year

Student Council led TR through an active year. Among the many events council sponsored included "howdy" and Christmas dances, blood drives, the first North East ISD county fair and dance at Blossom Athletic Center, the "Oklahoma!" float in the high school division of the Battle of Flowers parade, school store and a popcorn machine for students after school.

"I had so much fun in Student Council this year because we were so active. I met a lot of people and made many new friends, both at Roosevelt and other schools. It's quite a learning experience on how to control a school to try to please all of the students," Susan Sullivan, treasurer, said.

Officers lead year's activities

"The fate of humanity is in our hands."

Seniors elected those words of Abraham Lincoln as their motto, crimson and blue as their colors and the white rose as their class flower. Seniors sponsored football mum and balloon sales, "Style Show and Dating Game" assembly and a toy drive for underprivileged children. From money making projects such as the '78 t-shirt and mug sale, seniors voted to give lettering for the front of the school as their class gift.

"Springtime in Paris" was the theme of the junior-senior prom, sponsored by juniors. Prom activities took place at Turtle Creek Country Club and the major fund raiser was the showing of the movie, "The Other Side of the Mountain."

Sophomores handled arrangements for the Valentine Dance in the Sheraton Hotel. Numerous bake sales, a Dick Van Dyke film and singing telegrams sponsored their efforts.

Freshmen sponsored a "moon walk" at the Roosevelt Country Fair and participated in Spirit Week in an effort to raise money for their following years at TR.

1 Sophomore class officers include Sharon Ards, vice president; and Lisa Kalka, treasurer. Not reporting for photo were Mike Ellis, president; and Gloria Galvan, secretary.
2 Freshman class officers are Marla Jones, president; Greg Love, vice president; Barbara Wilson, secretary; and Colleen Sweeney, treasurer.
3 Elected by Junior Class are officers Jill Bukowski, vice president; Felicia Ards, president; Melanie Ball, secretary; and Tammy Gunter, treasurer.
4 Senior Class officers are Pam McBee, vice president; Tangi Bull, chaplain; Danny O'Connor, president; Kathy Medina, secretary; and LuAnn Peirce, treasurer.

'THE SCHOOL COMMUNITY WAS MADE UP OF MORE THAN STUDENTS AND TEACHERS. WHAT DO YOU SAY, MERCHANTS?'

"Money isn't everything" just isn't true in the publications business. All the "neat" graphics and full-color pictures cost a whopping sum. Without the help of local merchants, there would have been no yearbook. Ask the journalism students who trekked up and down the neighboring community in search of proprietors eager to advertise for a nominal fee. The finished product proved the sometimes nerve-racking experiences paid off. So we say "thanks" to those who say . . .

Can-Am* MX-4 250: power under control

MX-4 is a whole new generation of motocrossers from Can-Am. Take our rotary valve 250. Its power peak is now 37.5 BHP at the rear wheel. But a new longer stroke design brings that peak in at lower RPM and keeps it there longer with lots of torque lurking just beneath.
And the frame, the suspension, the rear brake, even the seat and tank shape have been rethought so you can get that power to the track more predictably and more comfortably.
Can-Am captive power. Get your dealer to show you how we did it.
It delivers a motocrosser's secret fantasy: Can-Am power and price under control.

We have designs on the future.

And the future starts today at Windsor Park Bank.
Our new bank building is one way we're looking ahead to tomorrow.
We've added more customer services and facilities. . .
and will soon have the largest drive-in banking facility in San Antonio.
Planning ahead for our customers' convenience.
That's how we have designs on the future. . .today.

Hopes for a football victory against the Lee Volunteers were bright on a "Spirit Week" evening at a pep rally that attracted a large crowd of Rough Rider fans. Despite the celebration, TR fell 35-7 to the state finalists.

Holidays change mood

We were relieved of all this tension for a brief period during the Christmas holidays, after which we all came back a little richer and some, a little fatter. When no holidays were there to look forward to, we waited for the weekends, when some hit the high spots of town — Sugar Daddy's, Hallelujah Hollywood and Deja Vu, local discotheques featuring ultimate fashion apparel, ultimate dancing and ultimate drinking. For the "not so ultimate" crowd, MacArthur Park and the Golden Stallion were close by — which, come to think of it, did feature ultimate drinking.

Spring break did it in for most students, who previously had conformed to a much study — little play way of life. From then on, fewer and fewer faces could be seen at TR and more and more of them could be seen at Windsor Park Mall and Stinky Falls.

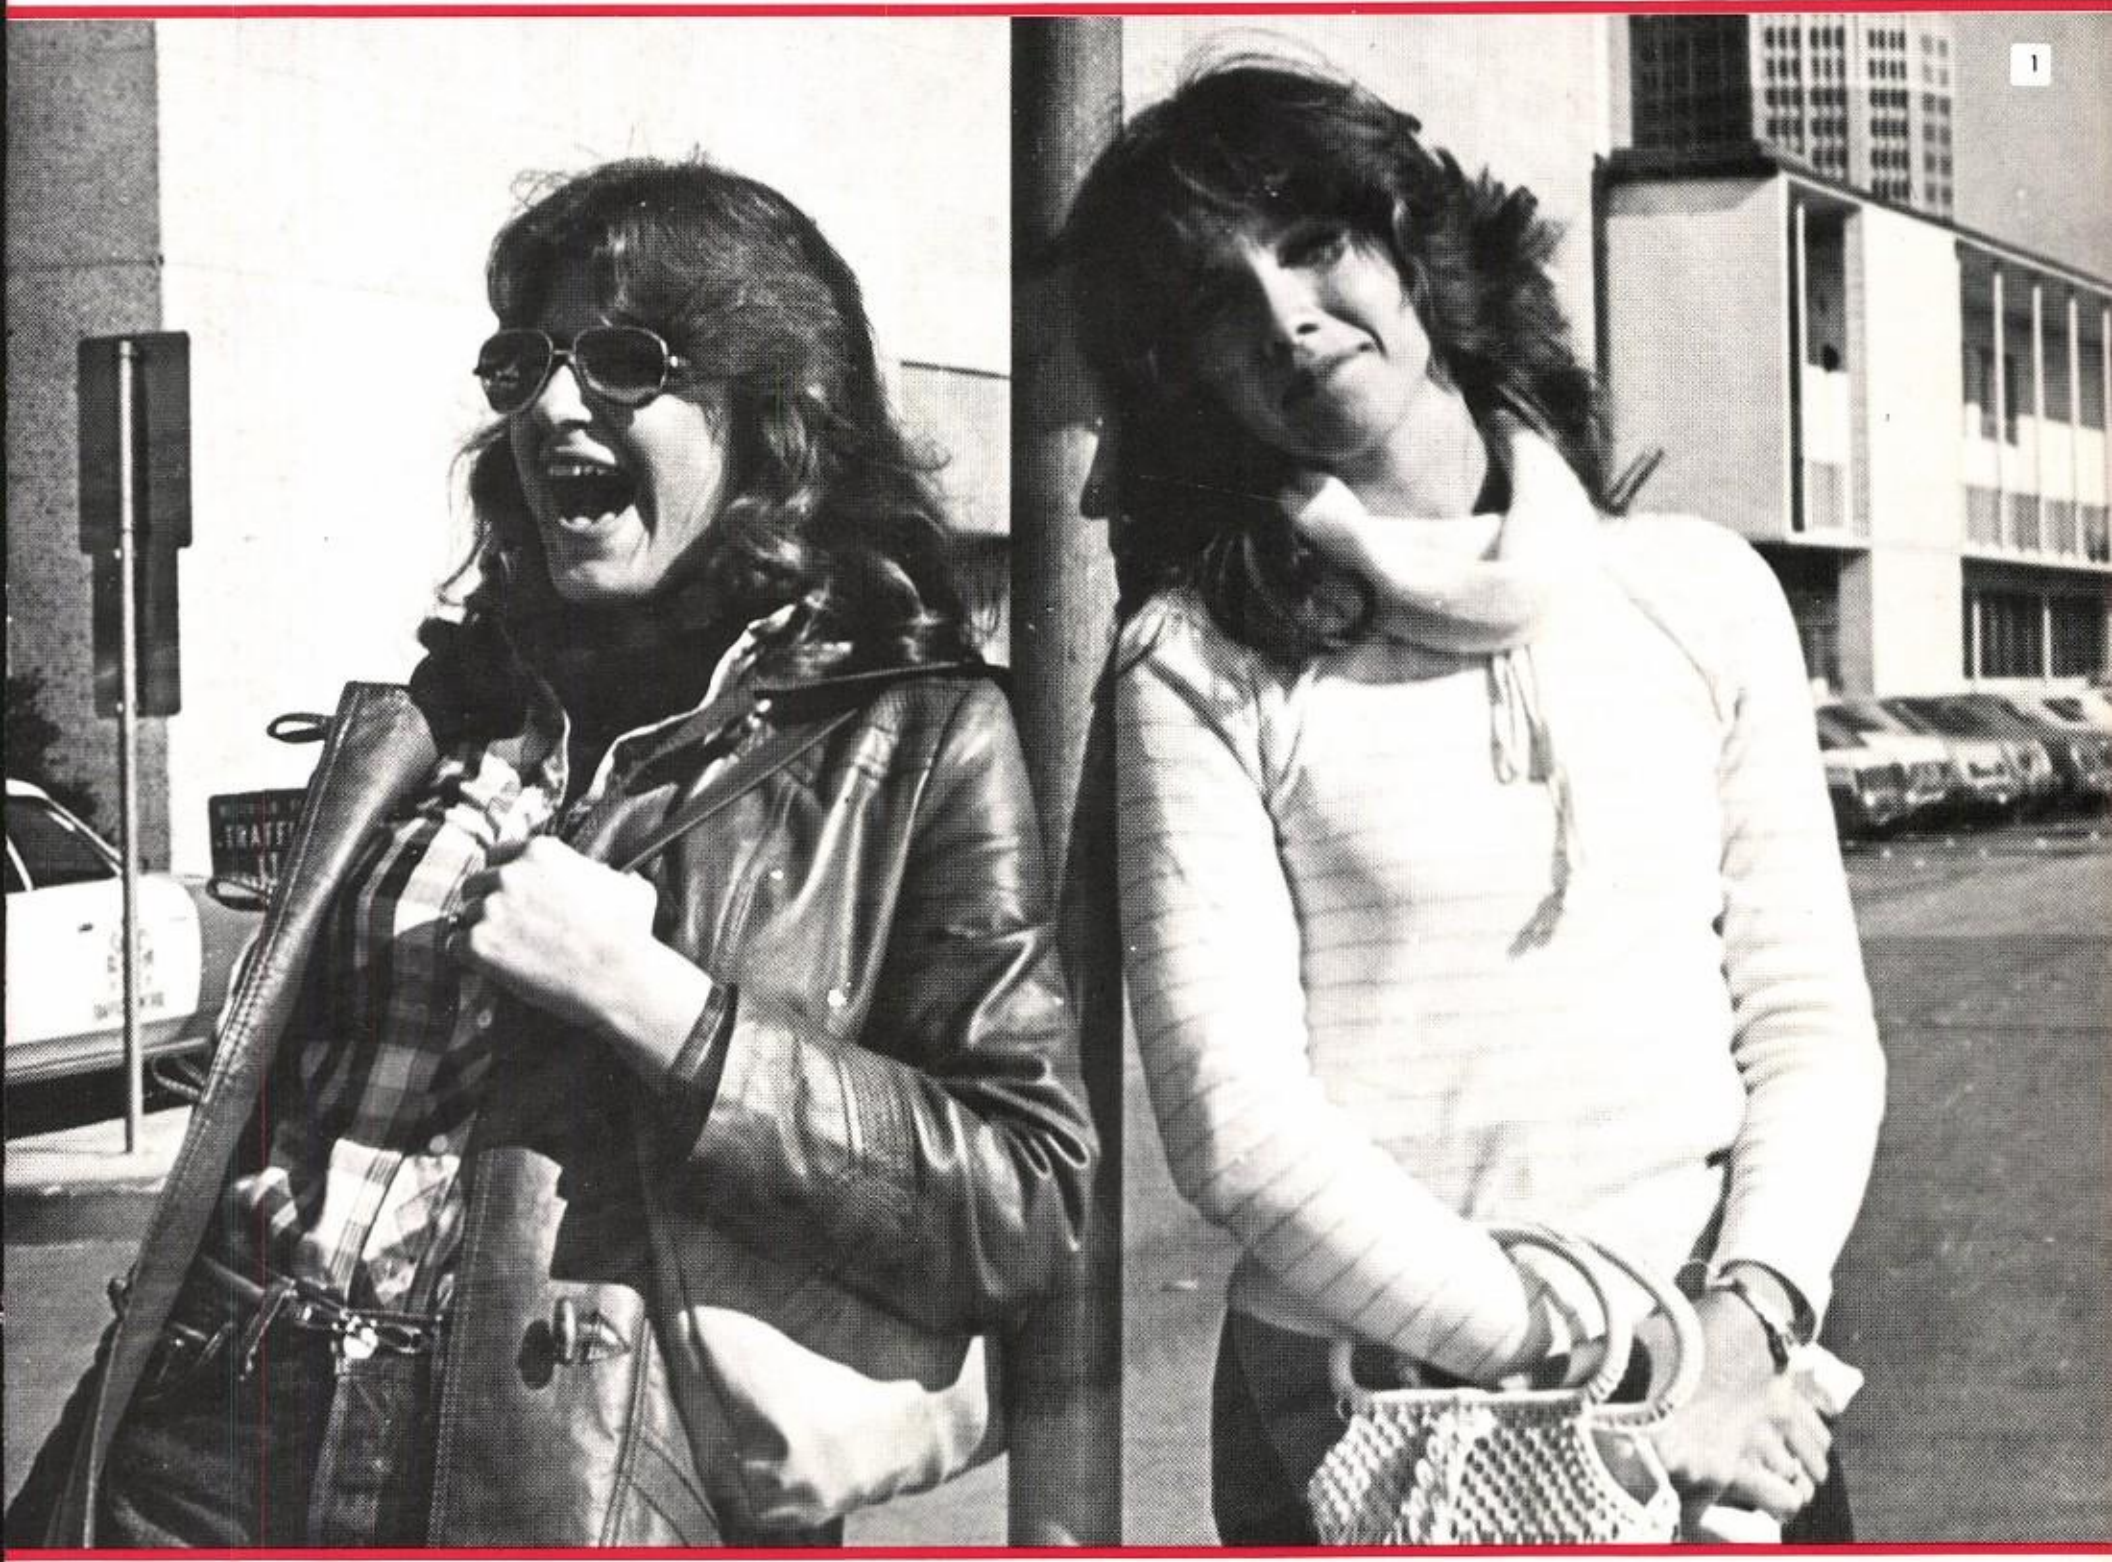
Pam McDonald and Donella Eklund enjoy themselves during field trip to Bexar County Jail with the Law Enforcement Club.

Sports enthusiasts played an important role in competition by boosting the spirit of the athletes. Here, fans watch a junior varsity football contest.

Leroy Cunningham struts his stuff in the junior style show sponsored by DECA. The purpose of the show was to recruit juniors into the distributive education coop program.



Riders 'kick'

Major changes took place in students' lives. Freshmen finally were familiar with every nook and cranny of the campus, and probably were leery about spending the rest of the most wonderful years of their lives here. Sophomores were ready to move into the number two ranked position and juniors suffered swollen heads after receiving their class rings, officially making them THE leaders of Rough Rider Country. Seniors, before passing on to bigger and better things, kicked (as the saying went) and enjoyed their dismissal two weeks earlier than underclassmen.

The year 1978 was a year full of memories. For some, crazy and daring were those days of seeing who could get out of the overcrowded parking lot without a smashed fender, and exciting and adventuresome were the nights when cruising down Walzem, congregating at Jack-in-the-Box or flooring it through Windcrest was the thing to do.

For the others, high hopes were shot down when the students at the front of the lunch line were given more turkey than those at the end. Some came close to an emotional breakdown while they tried to think of a plausible excuse why

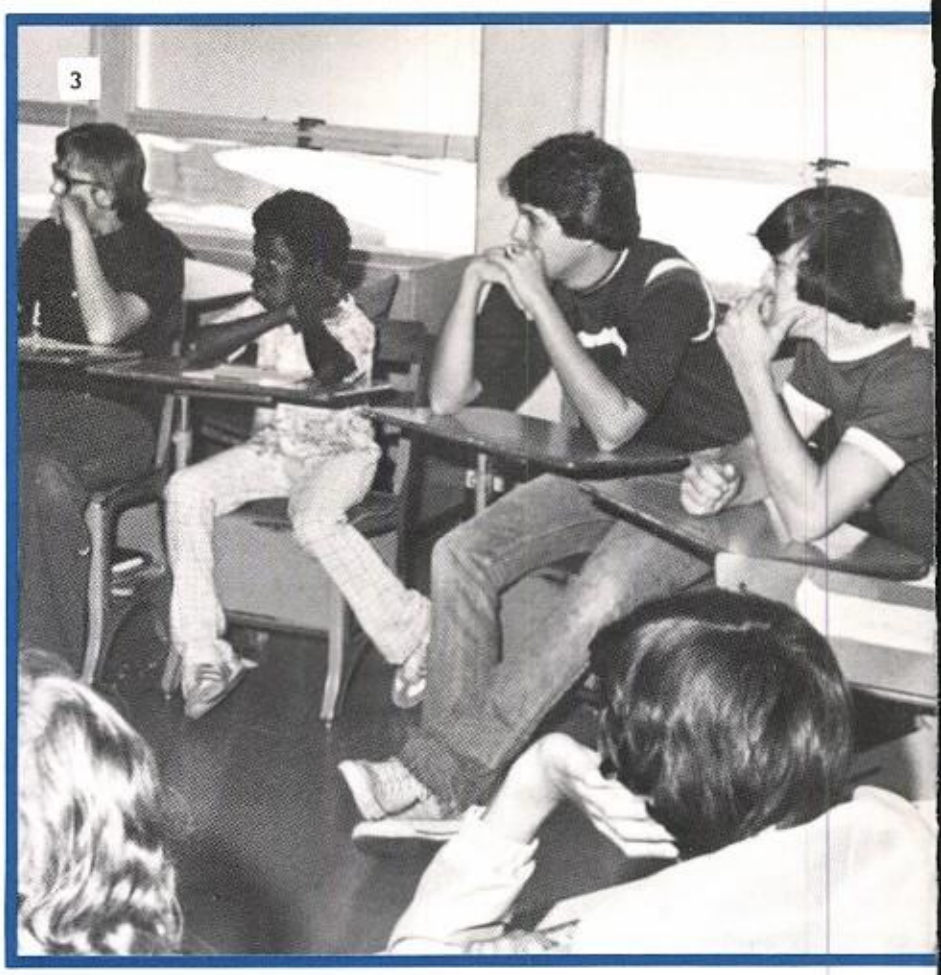
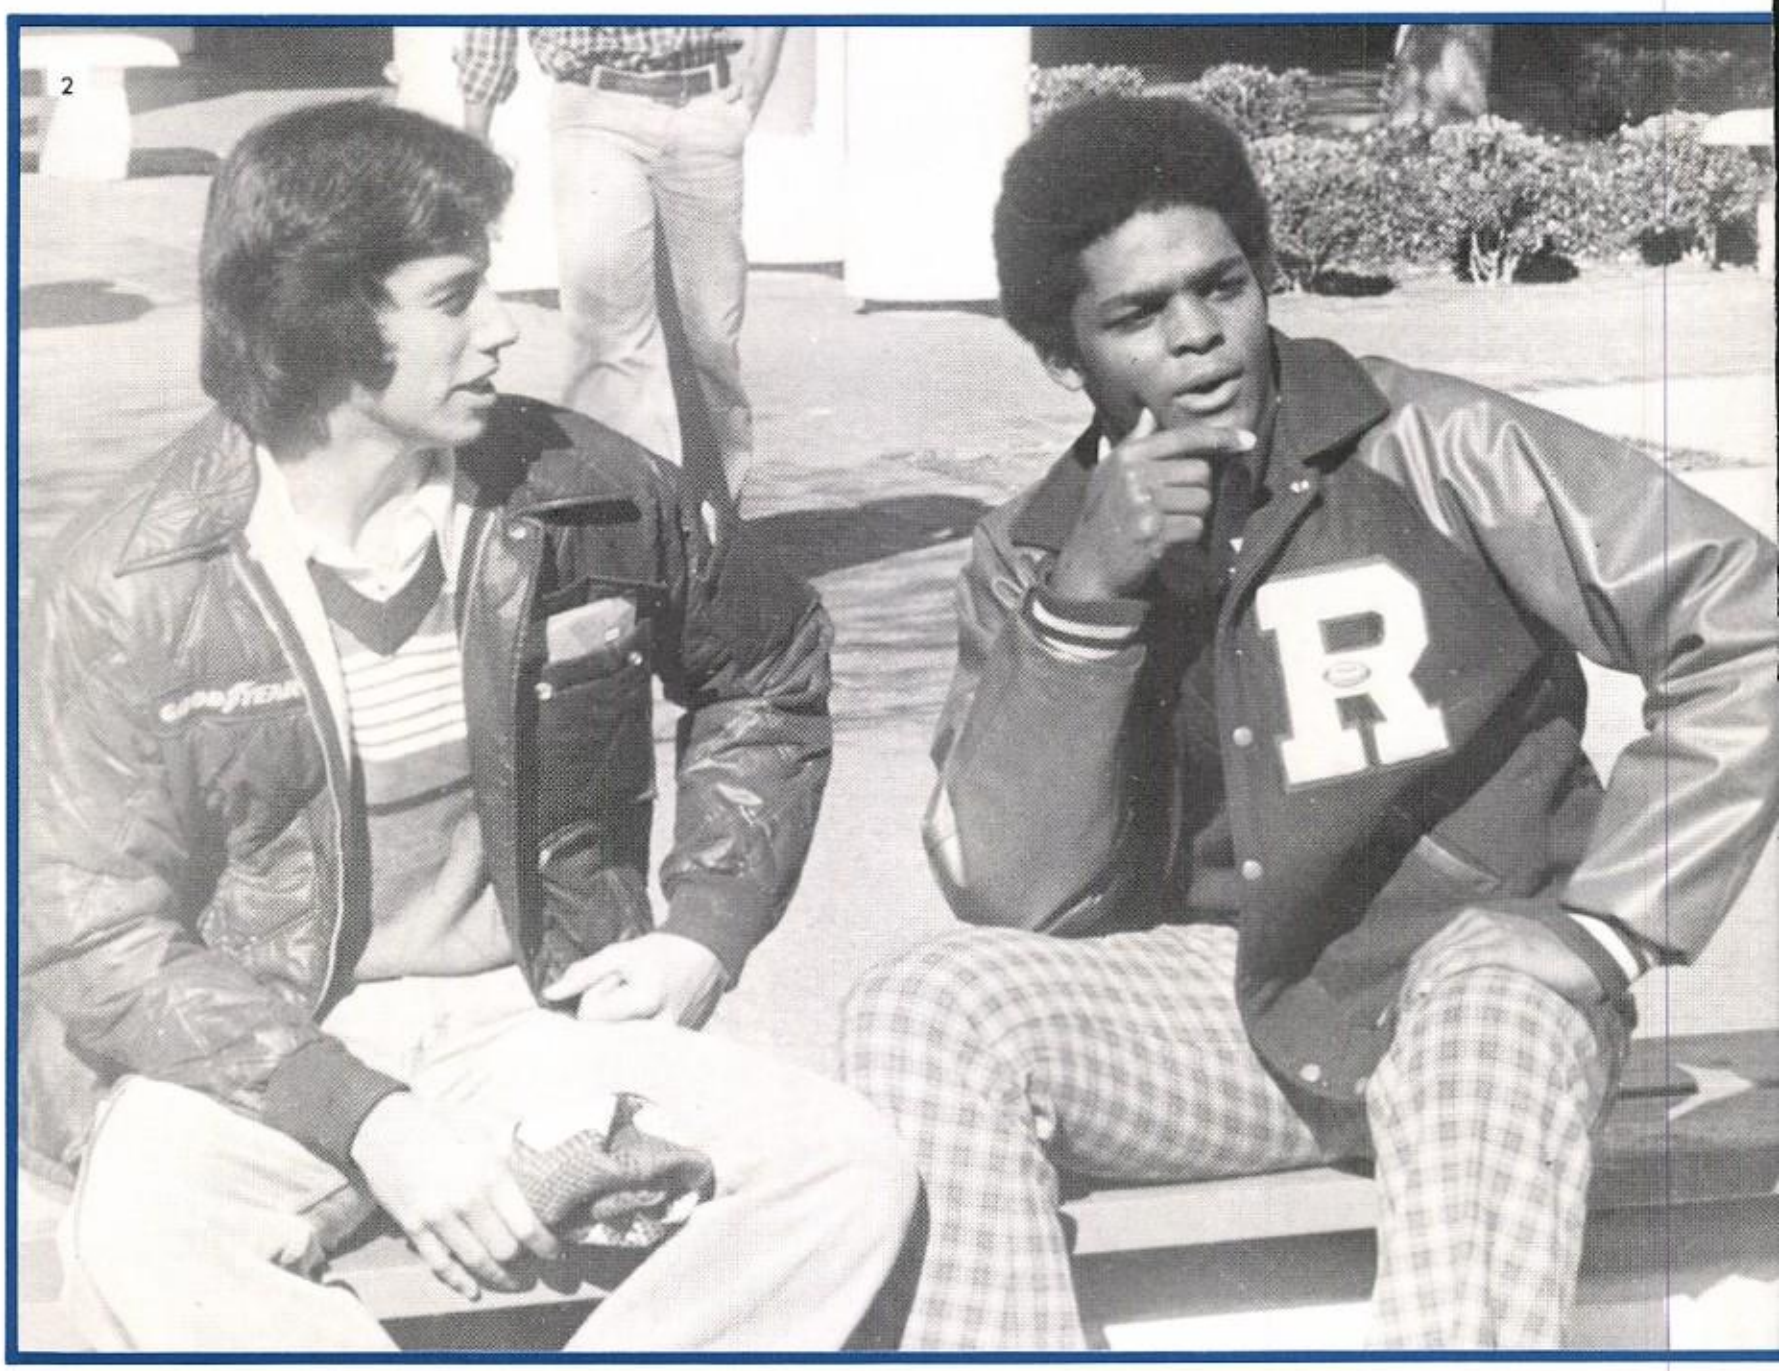
1 Barbara Hernandez sinks a basket as Janet Hill and John Robinson await the rebound.
2 Sancho Panza (Johnny Pylant) tries to convince Don Quixote (Mitchell Noble) that the dragon he sees is really a windmill, but Panza's cries are to no avail.
3 Candy Obie explains a difficult homework assignment to Mitch McManus and Eddie Jordan.

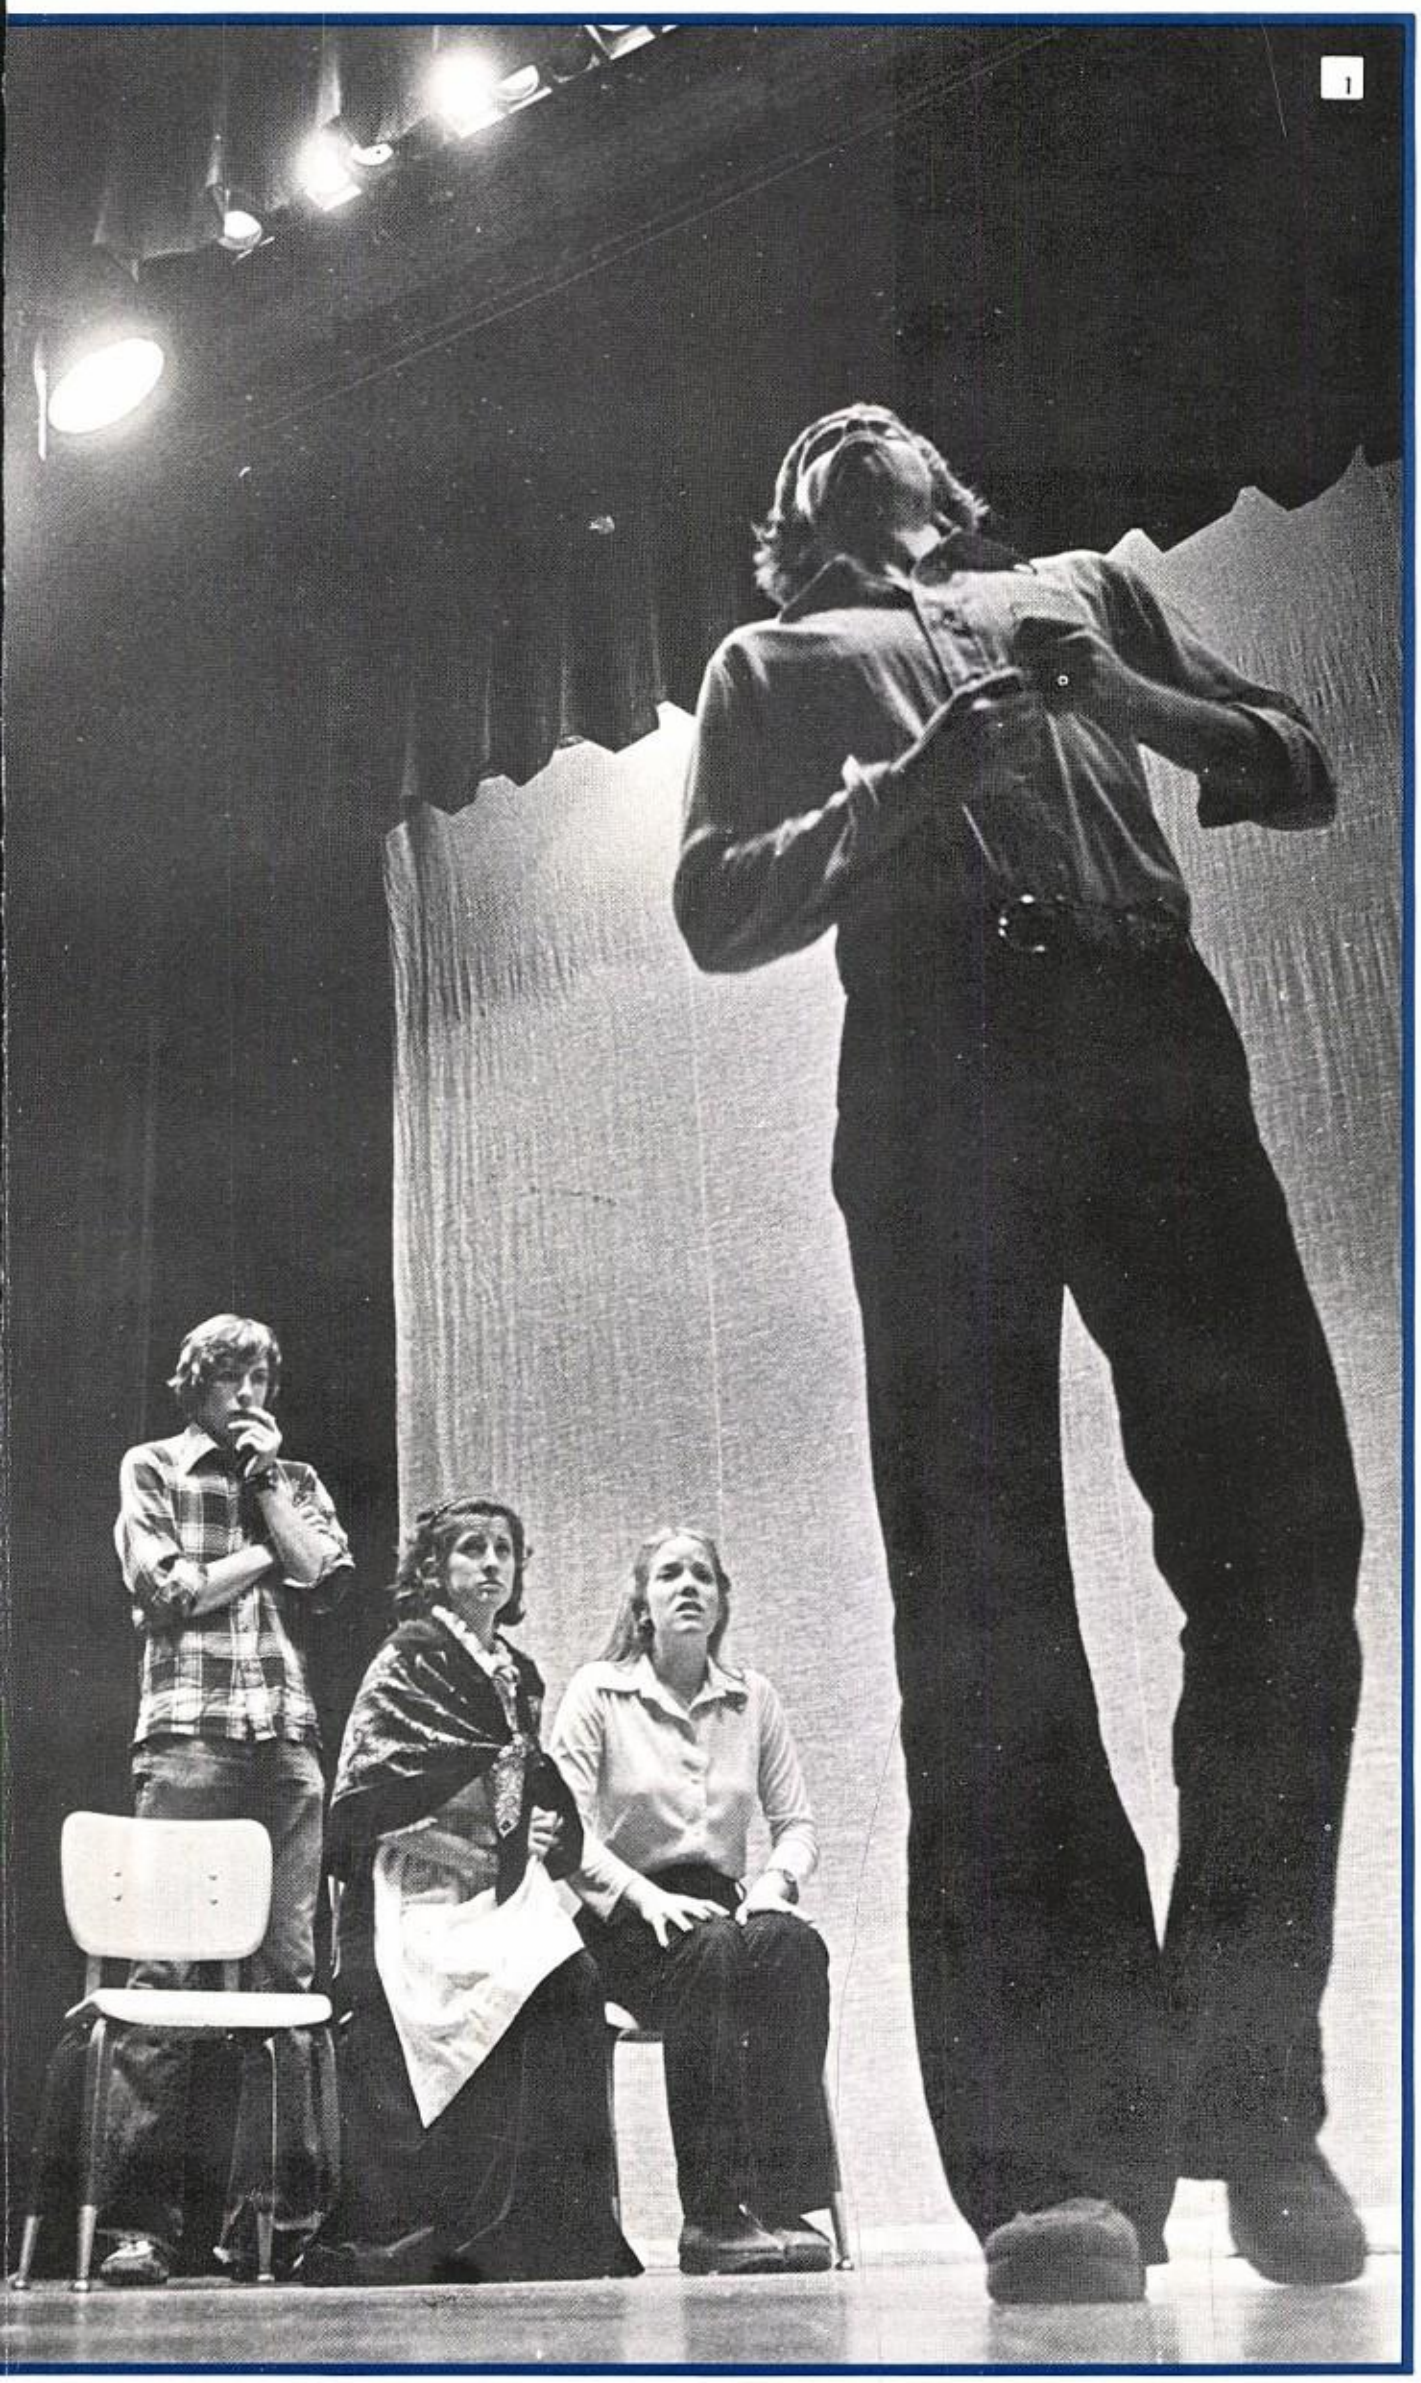
Living, learning at TR preparation for future

the term paper was late. Some admitted to giving up an arm and a leg to pay for lost library books whose fines actually had exceeded the costs of the books.

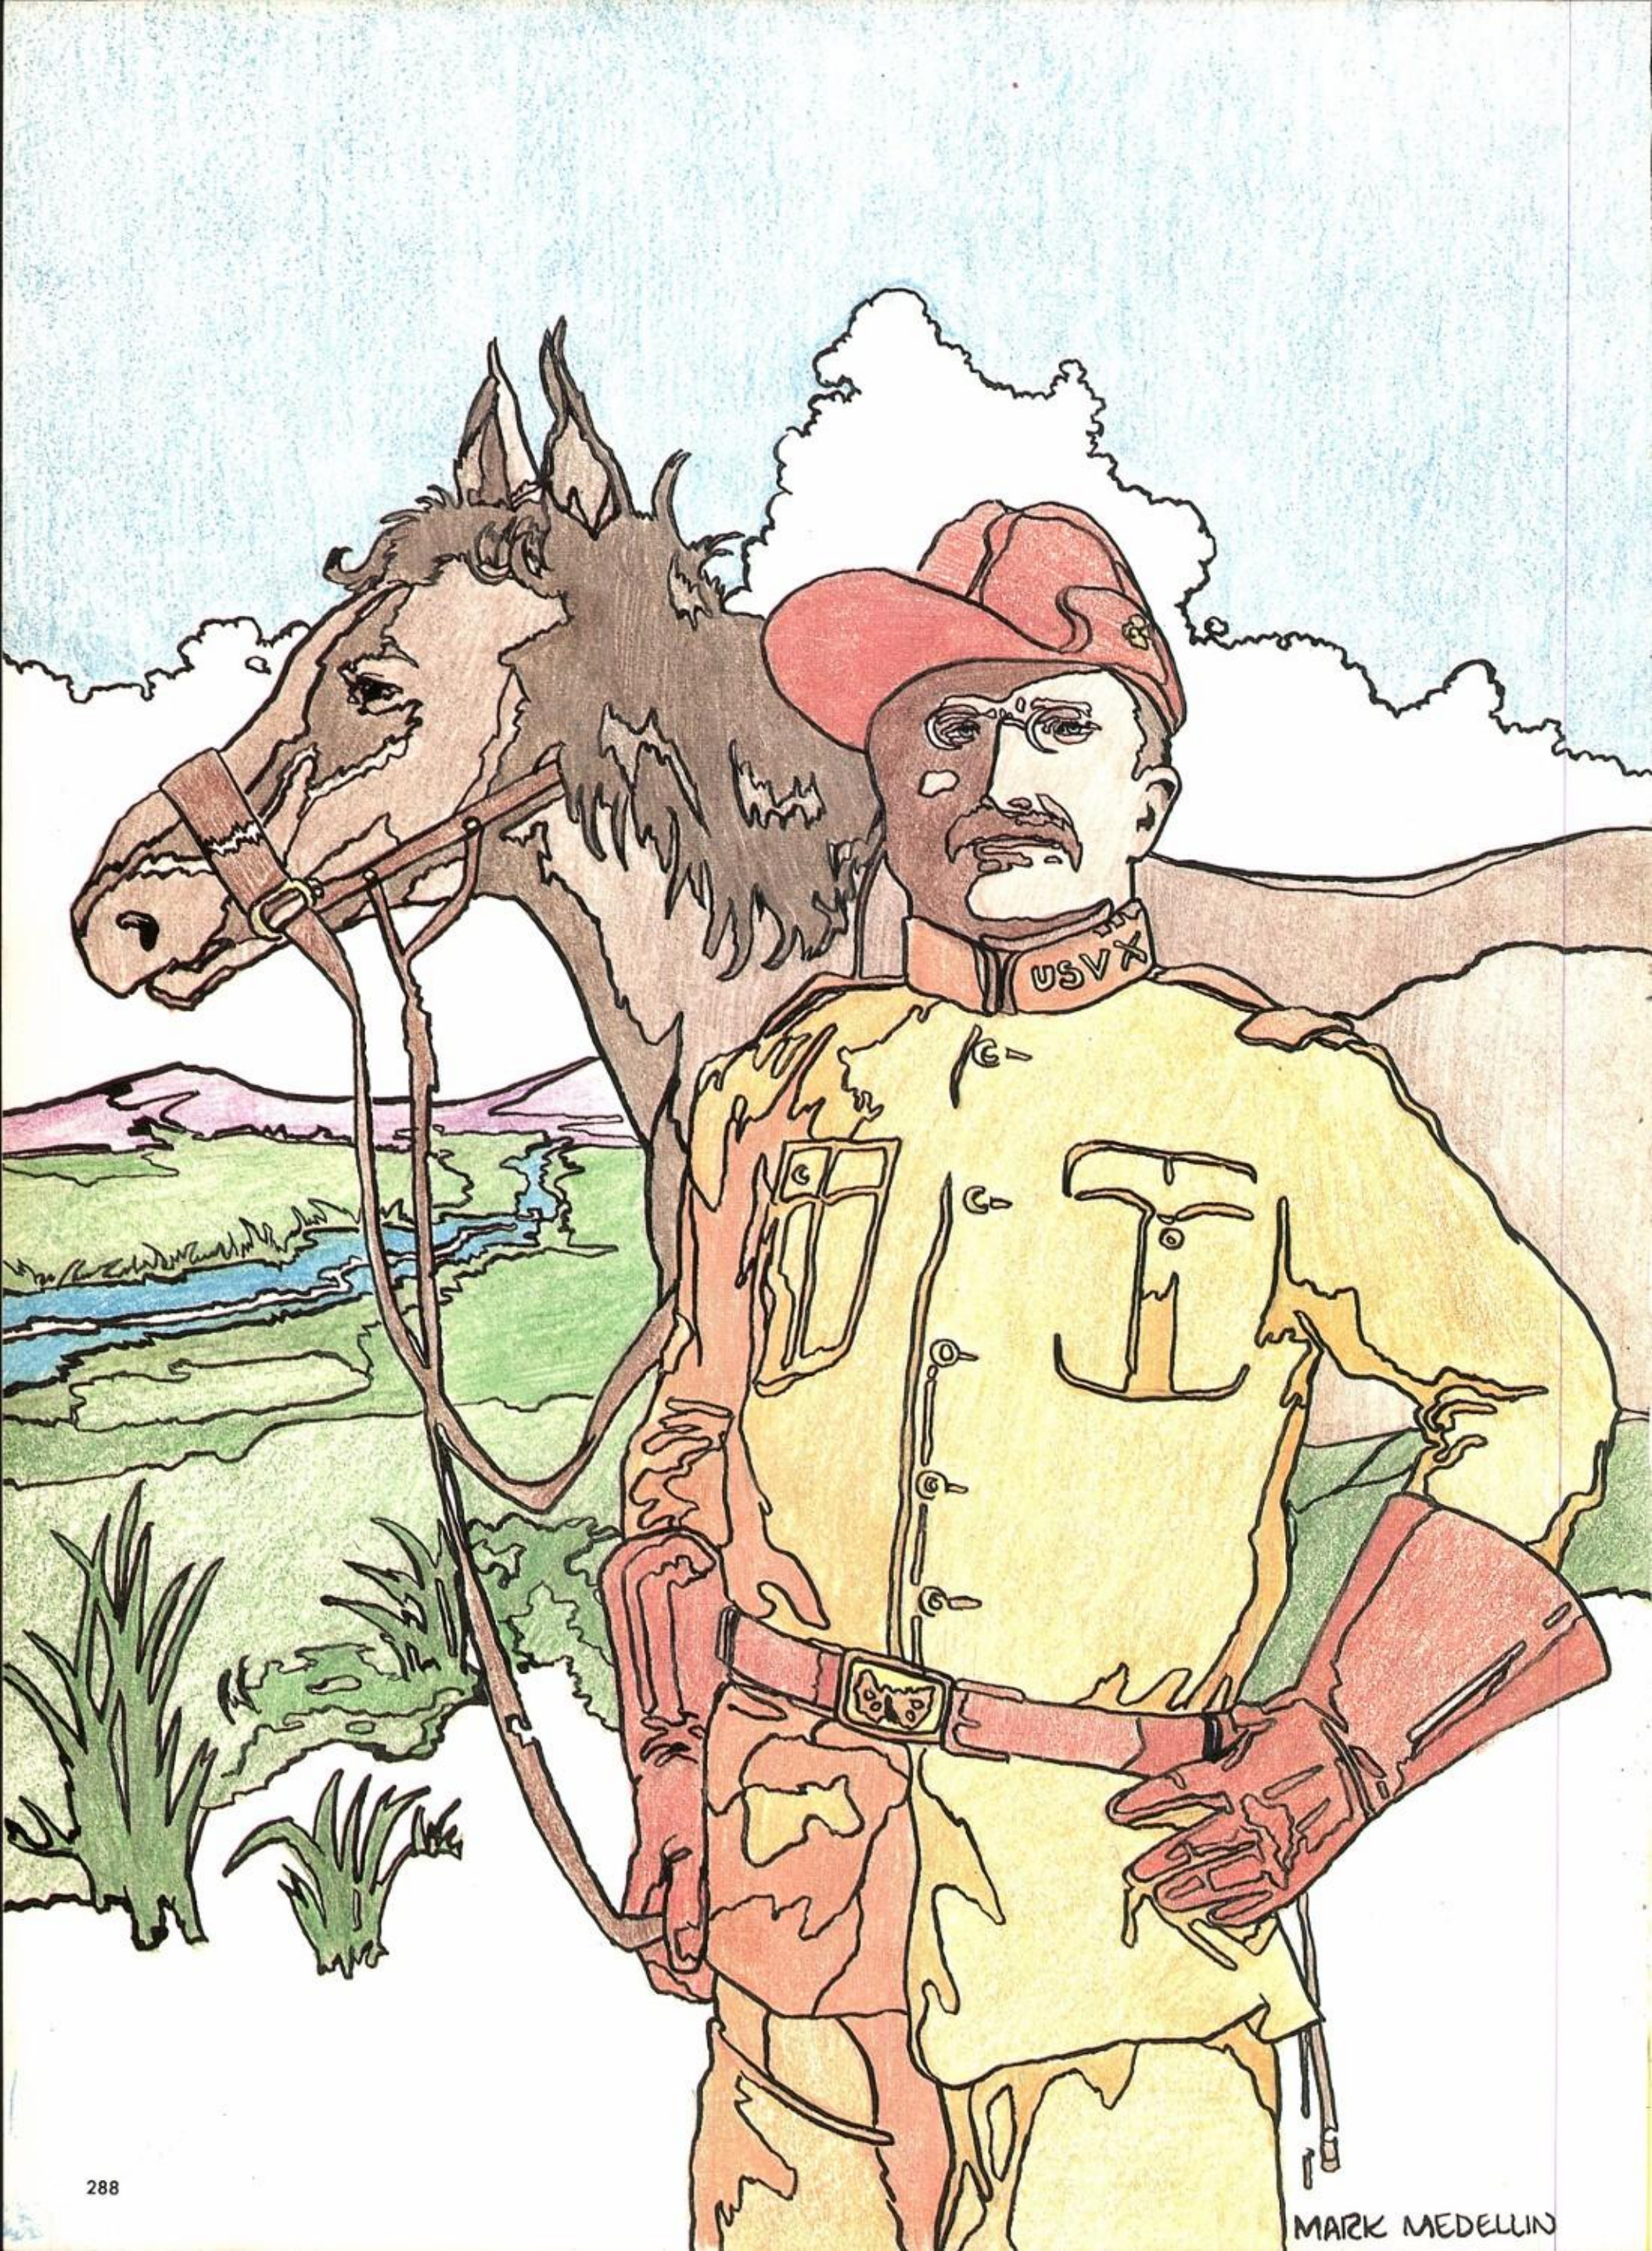
As any school year goes, the time for re-adjusting, re-learning and re-applying meant different things to different people. We lived a lot and learned a lot — just so it would be that much better the next time around. We'll probably forget most of what has happened to us. Still, there will be some little event left in the back of our minds that will remind us of all we've learned and of all we've worked for, and with that, we'll prepare ourselves for the days ahead.







1 David Brown, Sandy Birdsall, Lisa Clepper and David Whitehead rehearse a scene from dramatic production, "Don Quixote."
2 Adam Romo and Joery Smittick socialize and check out the courtyard scene during a passing period.
3 TR confluent education participants discuss self-esteem concepts with students at Krueger Middle School.



MARK MEDELLIN

Susan,
your a really great friend! I'm so glad we have English together.

Susan,

Hi! I wish we had more classes together cuz we don't have Advisory very often. Sorry I messed up when talking to Gary, I'll fix it though

Gwen Weiser

Susan,

Your a really good friend! I wish I could see more of you at school. Good Luck in Marching Band.

R "81" Linda Bertetti

I don't see that much of you during the summer but hope to see more of you during the year. Love Ya

Hugs
Melissa

I hope we have time to spend with each other during the summer time.

Susan,

To a really nice and sweet friend. Good luck in life. Keep on skating always and always Keep on jamming at the too much rinks. I will always remember you even though we are starting to get in a lot of fights lately. Even though we are starting to split apart now maybe we will get closer in the near future or during the summer.

B + F,

I really glad I met you in 7th grade because now I know I have a friend for life.

To a girl whom I am just getting to know. But I like you already.

Susan,
You're a really great friend of mine and I hope it always stays that way. keep up the partying 'cause you'll go far in life if you don't. Also stay exactly the same way because I for one can tell you - you can really make someone wasted laugh their fuckin' head off.
* God Bless You
